Madison Relief Levy Perils City Plan

TOWNSHIP TO ASK ONE-MILL TAX FOR NEEDY

Action Seen as Jeopardizing City's Request for 2 Mills for Same Purpose.

SEEKS TO RAISE $54,000

Mansfield, Part of Township, Would Pay 3 Mills If Both Levies Pass at Primary.

Madison township trustees today sought to have a one-mill, township-wide relief levy proposal placed on the primary ballot Aug. 9, and by so doing may have jeopardized chances for passage of the two-mill levy placed on the ballot by the city.

Because Madison township includes all of Mansfield, residents of the city would have to pay both levies, if they should pass at the August election, making the total assessment three mills for city residents, and one mill for township residents outside the city.

Affects Entire Township.

County officials said they had learned from the attorney general's office in Columbus that any township levy would have to be assessed against the entire township, and that the fact that the city had proposed a two-mill levy for the same purposes itself could not affect the situation.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter admitted today that if that were the case, chances of the passage of the city's two-mill relief levy would be jeopardized, since voters would be less likely to approve a two-mill levy if they thought the township levy would pass, and make their share three mills.

Mayor Hunter said, however, that it was his understanding that even though Mansfield voters would be required to vote on both levies, they would only pay the city levy.

Assistant Prosecutor Harold T. Lutz and Auditor Norman Wolfe differed with him, expressing the opinion that if both levies were approved, city residents would have to pay both.

Madison Funds Exhausted.

Township officials, their funds exhausted and faced with relief bills averaging $5,000 a month, voted at a special meeting late yesterday to submit a one-imill levy which would produce about $54,000 a year. Two days before council authorized a vote on a two-mill levy.

The city levy would be for two years, producing approximately $90,000 a year, while the township levy would be in effect for only one year.

A proposal to combine the two levies and to distribute the funds to both city and township was ruled out by the attorney general's office, forcing the separate vote, Lutz said. Likewise, a proposal

Ashland Student Graduates, Gives College $10,000

(By Staff Correspondent)

ASHLAND—The story of the little boy who wished that the school house would burn down so that he wouldn't have to be educated is in sharp contrast to that of Philip A. Myers, II, of Ashland, who yesterday handed a check for $10,000 to the president of his college as his own graduation gift to it.

Young Myers, a son of the late Guy Myers and Mrs. Katherine Myers, presented the check to President Stringfellow Barr of St. John's college, Annapolis, at commencement exercises.

"I consider my education here was worth more than I paid for it," he said, "and I want you to use this money to endow an open scholarship for deserving students."

Myers, a grandson of the late Philip A. Myers, one of the founders of the F. E. Myers and Brother company, has inherited a million dollars in the past year.

He attended Ashland public school through the eighth grade and then went to University school at Cleveland, before entering St. John's, third oldest college in America. He is planning to study law, probably at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va., next year.

His mother and sister, Elizabeth, attended the graduation ceremonies at St. John's yesterday.

STOP-GAP RELIEF BILL APPROVED

Senate OK's House Measure to Advance $1,500,000 for Counties in Distress.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Senate concurrence in house amendments completed legislative action today on a stop-gap relief bill providing $1,500,000 advances on 1938 sales tax revenues to financially distressed counties.

The senate voted 24 to 0 in agreement with minor house changes, exactly the number needed for passage as an emergency bill to become effective immediately.

The legislature, having coped partially with immediate crises, today, turned its attention again to the problem of raising $13,000,000 to $17,000,000 to finance relief during the remainder of the year. Enactment of a program, however, is likely to be delayed until congress decides whether to pour millions of direct relief funds into Ohio.

The loan will serve to pay a few grocery debts and provide backing for more credit from merchants furnishing relief commodities while the legislature is developing a program for the rest of the year.

GETS CITY POST

J. C. Ziegler Replaces Hess in Sewer Department.

The appointment of Joseph C. Ziegler, 23, of 354 Lexington avenue, as bookkeeper in the sewer department, to replace John Hess, a Republican hold-over, effective June 15, was announced today by Mayor Claude M. Hunter.

Ziegler, a Democrat, and former filling station attendant, was on the job today receiving instructions.

The mayor said that Hess, a Republican, appointed to the position by former Mayor Earl A. McFarland, early in 1937, had been reappointed early in January with the understanding that he would be replaced at the end of six months.

He said Ziegler's bond of $1,000 had already been approved. He will be under the supervision of Fred A. Lingafelter, secretary of the water, sewer, and garbage department. The position pays $1,560 annually.

SEES WAR ONLY SOLUTION FOR CZECH CRISIS

Knickerbocker Says Moves to Settle Difficulties Now Merely 'Eye-Wash.'

MILITARY STAND KEY

Czech Decision to Keep Army on Border Indicative of Constant Threat.

(Editor's Note: Solution of the Nazi-Czech dispute is "bound to be violent," H. R. Knickerbocker, ace International News Service staff correspondent, declares today in a cable dispatch from Prague. Negotiations between the Germans and Czechoslovakians, Knickerbocker states, are merely "eye-wash.")

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
(INS Staff Correspondent)

PRAGUE — Europe faced the fact today that little Czechoslovakia's troubles with her giant neighbor, Germany, are chronically incurable, and that nothing but superior guns in the hands of the democracies will keep the peace this summer.

For today the Czechs and Germans showed that there is no reasonable possibility of a peaceful understanding between them, and that the only solution of their quarrel is bound to be violent.

Retains Arms Policy.

First the Czechoslovakian government announced it would continue to keep its army mobilized until an agreement had been reached with Chancellor Hitler and Konrad Henlein, Nazi leader of the Sudeten Germans.

Second, the Henlein party announced that it would not, in that case, negotiate for any agreement at all.

This is the sense of the latest phase of the quarrel which contains the most immediate material for the next great war. Neither side will admit publicly what each admits privately; namely that the so-called negotiations are merely eye-wash for the outside world, designed to convince public opinion abroad of their goodwill.

For Germany this is essential in order to be able finally to justify the direct action which Henlein declares will follow a breakdown of the negotiations.

For the Czechs it is equally essential to prove they have done everything possible to prevent such a breakdown.

Extends Army Service.

Thus, the Czechoslovakian formal announcement reads merely that the Czechoslovakian government has introduced a three-year term of military service instead of the two-year term, and that reservists now serving with the col-

DECIDES CANDY CAN'T BE TAXED

Judge Rules Bon Bons Are Food, Upholds Dealer's Stand.

AKRON—(AP)—Candy is a food and therefore exempt from the sales tax, Common Pleas Judge Frank Harvey ruled today.

He granted a request of E. A. Andrews, Cuyahoga Falls candy dealer, that the court reverse an order of the state tax commission revoking Andrews vendors' license for failure to collect a sales tax on 25 cents worth of candy.

J. H. Morris, Cleveland attorney and counsel for Associated Candies, Inc., which backed Andrew's suit, said he would advise all candy dealers in the state to stop collecting the tax.

Led G-Men To Cash Boy's Body

Shown above is Franklin Pierce McCall, 21-year-old Princeton, Fla., truck driver, after his arrest as a suspect in the kidnaping-slaying of James Bailey Cash, jr., 5, whose body was found under an orchard tree less than a mile from the spot his father paid the $10,000 ransom. J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the G-men, announced McCall admitted writing the three ransom notes and accepting the ransom money, which was found in a hole at the corner of the orchard, McCall, federal agents said, led them to the body of the boy.

Gas Company's Stand On Renewal of Rates 'Softens'

Chances for Acceptance of Measure Seem Brighter; Tharp Says Utility Will Have to "Study It."

E. M. Tharp, vice president and general manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas company, today had adopted a greatly modified attitude toward the Mansfield gas rate ordinance, and chances that it would be accepted by the company appeared definitely brighter.

Tharp's first comment on the gas rate situation here, made at the outset of negotiations with council's utilities committee, was that the company would "have to have" increased rates in Mansfield.

Action Undecided.

Today, asked what action his firm planned to take on the ordinance passed by city council Tuesday night, renewing present rates for a three-year period, Tharp said: "I don't know yet what action we will take."

Reached by The News-Journal at Columbus, Tharp said he could give no answer on the company's course of action until the ordinance had been studied by company engineers and attorneys.

Meanwhile Council Clerk William J. Beer, jr., prepared to deliver a copy of the ordinance to W. C. Mead, Mansfield district manager, who said that the con-

LEAVES IN JULY

Roosevelt's Western Trip to Bring Him to Ohio July 8.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The White House announced today that President Roosevelt—if conditions permit—would leave on a western trip July 7 and speak in Covington, Ky., July 8.

No details were announced. It was expected, however, that the president would speak from his train at the stop in Kentucky, where Senate Leader Barkley is being opposed for renomination in the Democratic primary by Gov. A. B. Chandler.

The president first will keep a long planned engagement the morning of July 8 at Marietta, O., where he will speak in connection with the 150th anniversary of the Northwest Territory.

GUESTS WALK IN HOTEL STRIKE

Portland Rose Festival Visitors Suffer As Workers Quit.

PORTLAND, Ore.—(U.P.)—Guests of Portland's eight largest hotels spent a large part of their time today walking up and down stairs and sitting in restaurants waiting for food, instead of attending the festivities of the gala Rose festival.

Two thousand workers went out on strike last night at the city's largest hotels after operators refused to negotiate union contracts. The strike began even as a banquet was in progress for the Rose festival queen and her attendants.

In many cases the visitors carried their own luggage, although bellhops continued to work at most of the hotels.

CLARA FACES CAESARIAN

HOLLYWOOD — (U.P.) — Clara Bow, the red-haired former "it" girl of the screen, will undergo a caesarian operation June 20 for the birth of her second child. Dr. Harry Blodgett, who announced the date, said the operation was necessitated because of difficulty attending the birth of Miss Bow's first child, a boy, four years ago.

ADJOURNMENT HOPES FADING

Barkley Says Congress Won't Go Home This Week.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Hope that congress might complete the administration program and adjourn this week-end has vanished, senate majority leader Alben W. Barkley told President Roosevelt today.

Barkley told the president that there was not a chance that congress would adjourn this week-end. He fixed next Tuesday or Wednesday as the most likely date for the end of the session.

With conflict over the wage-hour bill and the relief-recovery bill still unresolved, chances for a finish to the session Saturday went glimmering.

KALLMERTEN FACES DISTRICT POST CONTEST

Newark Man Files for State Central Committee Against Richland Dem Boss.

OPPOSITION UNEXPECTED

Mansfielder Has Endorsement of Organization; Precinct Candidates Total 130.

A contest for the 17th district Democratic central committee post appeared unexpectedly today as Joseph J. Dolan, Newark, filed with the county board of elections to oppose E. B. Kallmerten, Mansfield, Richland county executive committee chairman.

Kallmerten was endorsed for the office at a recent meeting of central committee members from the six counties in the district at Mt. Vernon.

Tomorrow's Deadline.

With Friday as the filing deadline, nominating petitions continued to pour into the board of elections office today, and over 130 candidates for precinct, county and district offices have submitted their petitions.

The only contests so far, however, are for the district central committee posts in both parties, for the 17th district congressional nomination in both parties, and for county representative on the Republican ticket. Republicans still lacked a candidate for county auditor.

Files For Congress.

Philip Wolfe, former Mansfield service-safety director, filed his petition today for congress on the Republican ticket. He will be opposed by Oliver H. Dockery of Newark, and if successful in the primary will run against either William A. Ashbrook, the Democratic incumbent, or Lee Purdy of Coshocton, the other Democrat who has filed for the office.

All three present Democratic county office holders whose terms expire this year had filed today for re-nomination. They are C. L. Mitchell, commissioner; Norman L. Wolfe, auditor, and Ralph C. Lutz, representative to the general assembly.

Two Republicans, Harry H. Maxwell of Lexington, and L. Max Daugherty, Mansfield, have filed for representative, and John C. Friday, Springfield township, has indicated he will file for county

WORK ON STAFF

TVA Probers Pick Biddle to Serve as Counsel.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The congressional committee investigating TVA, having selected Francis Biddle of Philadelphia as chief counsel, sought today to complete its staff of engineers and auditors.

Chairman Donahey (D., Ohio) said these men would be sent to Knoxville, Tenn., to prepare for committee hearings in July.

He said Biddle, 52-year-old lawyer and former chairman of the National Labor Relations board, probably would begin work Monday.

In addition to legal writings, Biddle has produced a novel, some short stories and book reviews.

SUSPECT LEADS G-MEN TO BODY, HIDDEN RANSOM

Youth, 21, Confesses Authorship of 3 Notes, Collecting $10,000; Pajama-Clad Body of Boy Found in Old Orchard; Note Traps Suspect.

BULLETIN

PRINCETON, Fla.—(INS)—Masking their actions in secrecy, G-men today picked up an unidentified man near the home of Asbury Cash, uncle of kidnaped Jimmy Cash, jr., whose body they found early today, and rushed him to Miami under guard. Efforts to identify the man were fruitless. Officers were still holding Franklin Pierce McCall, 21, who confessed he had written the $10,000 ransom notes and collected the money.

(By International News Service)

MIAMI, Fla.—Forces of the law went into action today to bring to speedy justice Franklin Pierce McCall, 21-year-old Floridian who early today led G-men to the body of kidnaped Jimmy Cash, jr., after confessing authorship of the three ransom notes and collection of the pay-off.

The body of the 5½-year-old child—still clad in the one-piece white and rose striped pajamas he was wearing when he was snatched from his crib May 28—was found in an old orchard less than a mile from the spot where the father had vainly paid the ransom a week ago.

Nearby, at a spot designated by McCall, officers found the $10,000 blood-money which had been paid for the child's release.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the G-men, announced that McCall had confessed writing the three ransom notes, giving the signal for the pay-off, collecting the money, and then hiding both the ransom bills and the box in which they were contained.

But there was no definite word forthcoming from the G-men as to whether or not the youth was implicated in either the actual kidnaping or the murder of the helpless victim.

However, from Sheriff D. C. Coleman, who was instrumental in the arrest of McCall, came the flat assertion:

"In my opinion, this is a one-man job."

Calls Grand Jury.

A short time later, Circuit Judge Arthur Gomez, at the request of State's Attorney George A. Worley, issued an order for a special grand jury to be impaneled Monday to investigate the boy's murder.

Hoover previously announced he would turn over all evidence to Worley, since he believed it was a case for prosecution in the state courts.

The Cash child apparently was not transferred across a state line by his abductors and therefore the case does not come under the famous "Lindbergh" anti-kidnaping law.

While Hoover declined to go into details concerning the arrest of McCall, from Sheriff Coleman came the story of what led to his apprehension.

On Monday night, the sheriff said, McCall drove to the Cash filling station for gasoline. As the door was opened, McCall stopped and pretended to pick up something. It was a crumpled piece of paper, which proved to be the third ransom note.

"It must have been slipped under the door," the sheriff quoted

Suspected Kidnaper Looks Like A 'College Boy,' Newsmen Find

(By International News Service)

MIAMI, Fla.—Franklin Pierce McCall, who confessed writing the ransom notes and collecting the pay-off in the Cash kidnaping case, looks more like a college freshman than he does the type of a man who would become involved in a kidnaping.

Newspapermen were surprised when they were given a brief glimpse of the suspect at Miami headquarters of the Federal Bureau of Investigation this morning.

McCall is about 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighs 175 pounds. His hair is dark and is parted in the middle. His eyes were intense and deep-set.

His chin is square, and there is a decided cleft in it.

McCall presented a striking figure as he was brought into the room where the newspaper reporters were waiting. He was clad in a light grey suit and was wearing a white shirt.

He was without a tie, and his shirt collar was unbuttoned and the collar was turned out over his coat collar.

He was wearing light tan and white shoes.

If he was nervous over the situation, he concealed his feelings remarkably well.

Here's Text of Statement By Hoover Baring Kidnap Solution

MIAMI, Fla.—(UP)—Following is the statement made early today by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in announcing partial solution of the kidnaping of five-year-old Jimmy Cash:

"We have been able to recover the body of the little Cash boy.

"The body is to be removed to Miami for appropriate examination and autopsy.

"It was found west of Princeton and south of Coconut Palm road, about one-half mile from Princeton on the Coconut Palm road and then through an almost impenetrable underbrush, back of a thicket of palmettoes, at 12:03 a. m. (EST) Thursday.

"The child, five and a half years old, was kidnaped at 10 p. m. May 28, and the first ransom note was found shortly after 10 p. m. at the home of an uncle, Asbury Cash.

"This note gave the location of a second note which was found at the cabin of a John Emanuel, colored, who had nothing to do with the kidnaping and is in no way connected with it.

"This note made a demand for $10,000, to be paid at midnight May 30, and in that note the route was set to be followed by Cash down Tallahassee road to Moody road to Allapattah road to Mowry road to Dixie highway and back to Princeton—a route that would take 40 minutes to drive going 20 miles an hour. The route was followed and nothing happened.

Get Diplomas Under Stars Today – If It Doesn't Rain

An innovation in commencement exercises for Mansfield will be staged tonight when 287 seniors of Mansfield Senior high school are presented with their diplomas outdoors under blue skies—if it doesn't rain.

The exercises are scheduled to begin at 6 p. m. at Stadium field, for the largest class ever to graduate from the school. In case of rain, the exercises will be held at the same time in the school gymnasium.

Two hours later, in St. Peter's Catholic church, commencement exercises will be held for a class of 38 seniors of St. Peter's high school. The speaker will be Rev. William J. Killoran, pastor of St. Patrick's church of Galion.

The commencement address at the Senior high exercises will be given by Dr. Otto Mees, president of Capital university, Columbus.

Providing rain does not halt exercises at Stadium field, this will be the first time a Mansfield commencement program has been held outdoors. Exercises for the 1937 June class were scheduled for the stadium, but rain at the last minute prevented it.

The two commencement programs will bring to a close the 1937-38 year for Mansfield schools.

S. S. Matrimony Floundering, And in Month of Brides, Too

S.O.S....S.O.S....

The good ship Matrimony, commanded by Captain Cupid is floundering in the heavy seas of Depression—and right in the middle of June when the skies are sunny and the winds of Romance blow softest.

Clerks at probate court, who are usually busy around this time of the year making out applications for marriage licenses and issuing them, are frankly concerned at the lack of interest in marriage this year and can only attribute it to the economic conditions.

During the first week of the month—always a banner week in applications—there were only six applications, and court attaches believe that this is a new low for the opening of "brides' month." During the first week of June last year there were 22 applications.

Licenses issued were a little higher in comparison with 1937, for 10 were issued this year as compared with 15 last year.

While marriages always fall off in depression years, according to court records, this season of brides is getting away to an unusually slow start.

'Face Reality' Adviser Suggests

By VIRGINIA LEE

I wish I were a fairy godmother so that I could simply wave my wand and get the boys and girls who write to me anything their little hearts desire.

It might not turn out to be as good for them, however, as Cinderella's godmother's gifts were to her. The girls might get the boys they thought were their fairy princes, and find out they were not such princes after all, but headaches in male clothes

And the "princesses" that the boys are so much in love with might, after all, be merely silly little girls—selfish and "common." It often happens so in real life.

But when you are in love the loved one is seen through rose-colored glasses, and the faults that make them unlovely humans do not show at all. So maybe it is just as well that I cannot get my young friends the things they now think they want. It might prove disastrous And, it is a pretty heartbreaking thing, I know from experience, to see a fine young person go into marriage with heart aflame with love and happiness, and see the glow die out and be replaced by clouds of doubt and then of despair. I have seen it happen, and I know whereof I speak.

Another thing: I would be amused if it were not so pathetic when I read a young girl's letter in which she tells me how much she likes a certain young man, and while he never seeks her company or seems particularly interested, she is so sure that only shyness or something else no more important keeps him from letting her know that he cares for her. "The wish is father to the thought," sure enough, in such cases.

IN LOVE: I'm afraid that is the answer in your case, dear. I am afraid you have told too many people that you love this boy and he knows how you feel, and it has made him stare at you when you are in the same place, but he still is not enough attracted to seek you out. If he really liked you he wouldn't be afraid to ask you to not only dance with him, but to be his girl friend. He may or may not still care for the girl with whom he has been going, but he surely isn't enough interested in you to make an effort to get you for his sweetheart.

Better face realities, dear. Your young love is sweet and natural enough, but better just think of it as a rosy dream which may fade away with time. If it should happen that he grows more interested later, well and good, but at present he certainly isn't. No, don't invite him to your home until he shows that he wants to come.

Expert Gives Hair Dyeing Suggestions

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

Since the dawn of civilization women have been dyeing their hair. Some dyed it to get a more becoming color, others dyed it to hide gray or white hairs. In our grandmother's day women went right on dyeing their hair, but it was a secret that they guarded with their reputations. To accuse a Victorian lady of having dyed hair was the ultimate insult. Modern women are no exception, but they have lost that false pride that made hair coloring such a guilty secret. We come right out in the open and talk about dyeing our hair just as we talk about getting a different colored hat.

To dye or not to dye is, of course, a question that you have to settle for yourself. But this department has compiled some information on hair dyes which we thought might be of interest to those of you who are considering a color change for your crowning glory.

There are at present on the market over 200 hair dyes of various kinds. All hair dyes are grouped under some one of these four general classifications: Vegetable colors; metallic preparations, compound dye stuffs and synthetic organic compounds.

Vegetable colorings are: Camomile, plain henna, indigo; logwood, sage, and nut extracts such as walnut juices.

The metallic preparations are: Lead dyes, silver dyes; copper dyes, some containing iron; and nickel dyes.

Compound dyestuffs consist of vegetable products which usually contain copper and iron salts or both.

The synthetic organic compounds are all aniline derivatives

Take Dye Test.

There is one important fact to bear in mind before having your hair dyed. Be sure to ask your hairdresser to give you a predisposition test. This does not mean that the dyes themselves are not pure. It simply will show whether you are allergic to the particular dye. If you find that you are allergic to a certain type of dye, then take the test with another dye. In this way you will find one that is suited to the chemistry of your body.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

THERE WAS such bewildered reproach in Junior's voice and in the eyes he and Roderick turned on me that, despite my just anger and the ultimatum I had given Dicky, I found myself moving slowly toward the little group. But I stopped suddenly as I realized that Dicky was as angry as I; that he had made no move to as I; that he had made no move to apologize for the atrocious accusation of spying on him which he had made against me, and that, in all probability, he would not take the initiative in the "huggings"—time-honored rite of family reunions—which our small son was demanding.

Then, out of clear sky, as has happened so many times in our life together, my husband's black mood dissolved. Over the heads of the children, he flashed his old, engaging smile at me.

"Don't you want huggings?" he asked. "Or, perhaps you want trimmings with 'em. How about a first-class acquiescence to the ultimatum you laid down a few seconds ago? No need of going into details in public, is there?"

I knew he was right. We did not wish either of the small boys to guess the disagreeable scene through which we had just passed. But my hurt had gone too deep for complete surrender.

Good For Headache?

"No, I wish that as little as you do," I said. "But—I have a headache Don't you think—"

"You mean you don't think huggings would be good for a headache?" Junior's voice was an astounded wail.

"I assure you that is a fallacy," Dicky said, his voice roguish, his eyes dancing, and I saw that his volatile nature had, for the moment, put all worry as well as remorse behind him. "We will make your 'huggings' very tender, not violent in the least, but I am sure you need them Go get her, Junior, but be very careful of her."

My young son needed no second summons He sped from his father's side to mine as if he had been a projectile from a cannon. But he stopped himself before he reached me, and put his arms around me ever so gently.

"Come along, Mums!" he adjured me. "I just know huggins' will cure your headache."

Dicky Holds Her.

But though I permitted myself to be drawn by Junior and Roderick into the circle of my husband's arms, and took my part in the embrace of the children, I could not meet his eyes. And when he finally dismissed the boys with a genial "Run along now, kids—I want to talk to your mother," I made an involuntary movement to follow them. But his arm, clipped around my waist, kept me until they had gone out, closing the door behind them, happy in Dicky's promise that he would come to the playroom after them in a very few minutes.

Then he released me, and for a second there was silence between us. When he did speak his voice startled me with its intensity.

"Madge, look at me!" he demanded.

I raised my eyes, meeting his, which were looking at me with something inscrutable tingeing the tenderness of their expression.

"Length of Chain."

"Haven't I told you times without number, my foolish girl, that we can only go the length of the chain?" he asked tenderly.

A sudden visualization of that loved "chain"—Junior, Baby Faith and, yes, orphaned Roderick, as well—brought sudden tears to my eyes, and, turning, I hid my face against my husband's shoulder, all my rancor forgotten in the bliss of reconciliation.

"Now I'll 'fess up and do any penance you name," Dicky said, after a few seconds of silence. "I was an awful 'heel' as Junior says, and, of course, I really didn't think for a second that you'd been deliberately spying on me. But those figures on that pad might be so easily misinterpreted that I saw red when I saw you holding them in your hand.

"I thought I'd destroyed them," he went on, and there was a ring of truth in his voice which had been absent, or so I fancied, from his talk of "easy interpretation."

Then he drew a deep breath and drew back his head, his eyes meeting mine with uneasy questioning in them.

"Do you mind telling me just what you saw on that paper?" he asked.

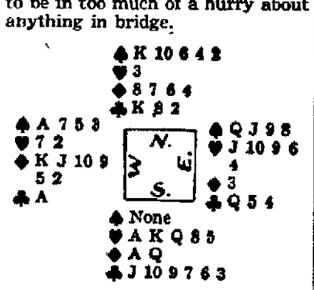
"The Authority on Authorities"

UNNECESSARY WORRY

Some players have heard too much about leading trumps to kill off those in the defenders' hands. They have got so that they lead them automatically at the first opportunity before looking to see if something else should be done beforehand. Or they lead them when some other piece of work is only half completed. It doesn't pay to be in too much of a hurry about anything in bridge.



(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North and East passed here and South began the bidding with 1-Club, which West overcalled with 1-Diamond. North put in a spade bid and East passed again. South's next bid was 2-Hearts and when North showed a preference for clubs, South took the contract to five

West decided on the diamond 5 for his opening attack against this contract and South won with the Q. Before drawing trumps, he cashed the heart Q and ruffed one heart. His next play was a trump, which West won with the A and followed with a diamond. East won with a trump and returned his last trump to kill any chance of another heart ruff

South led a spade to his hand for a ruff and started on what seemed like a solid heart suit, but found to his chagrin that he had erred in not ruffing one more round of hearts to make his contract secure. He could afford to lose the two clubs, so no harm could have resulted from the play.

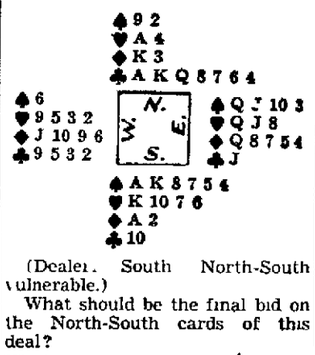
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South North-South vulnerable.)

What should be the final bid on the North-South cards of this deal?

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, June 10.

Although this may be a very active and enterprising day, judging by the lunar and mutual configurations, yet there are portents of a devastating, disruptive and possibly passionate or violent character.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a year of great activity and prosperity if they are wise enough to manage a difficult and dangerous condition begot of enmity, jealousy or peculiarity. Unpremeditated journeys, moves or change may attend this disturbing development, but in all be solaced and counseled by domestic, social and feminine associates.

A child born on this day may have many traits of originality, independence, ingenuity and initiative, with cravings for travel and adventure. But it may also be quarrelsome and intolerant unless given proper discipline in youth.

To Win Hearts Learn to Be Feminine, Alluring.

She thought she had happiness within her grasp. Then something went wrong. Instead of proposing, Jack lost interest. Finally she learned of his engagement to someone else.

Men are afraid of too efficient, "know-it-all" women. Be feminine. A sweet playful remark and the flutter of a chiffon gown are more appealing than the brainiest discussion.

Women that men like best are always the ones they are a little mystified about, who are not always the same. So don't be afraid to show your moods. Be gay, thoughtful, flirtatious by turns.

Remember that men like to feel strong and protective. Show your confidence in the one you love by turning to him for advice so he'll know how much you value his opinion.

Our 32-page booklet tells you what to do at critical times in love and marriage. How to straighten out emotional tangles.

Send 10c for your copy of "How to Win and Hold Love" to The Mansfield News-Journal, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

And now we'll give the men a break on bathing suit styles. It seems that the male of the species is going to get a bronzed back and chest whether he will or no — that is, if he wants to wear the very last word in smart suits, because all the suits except one consist entirely of trunks. No more does milady have the field to herself in gay colors and fancy designs. . . . man has come into his own. Here are the smartest Jantzen suits . . . you'll find them at GOLDSMITH'S. The "Half Hitch" is a conservative style trunks at $2.95. The "DeLuxe Topper" is yours for $5.95 or $6.95 (the $6.95 is Lastex). "Double Half Hitch" in Lastex is $3.95. Then there's the "Streamliner" for $3.95 and the "DeLuxe Streamliner" (Lastex) at $4.95. The "ZipHitch" is one of those handy zip-you-have-a-shirt-and-zip-you-haven't affairs It sells for $3.95 plain and $4.95 in Lastex. The last word I have saved till last . . . a plaid "Half Hitch" in Lastex at $4.95. The boys who want to make a real splash on the beach as well as in the water will go for these plaid trunks in a big way. I don't have to talk about the fit of Jantzen suits. For years Jantzen products have fit the bill for men and women who wanted a swim suit that combines freedom of motion with trim style in the water or on the beach. Beach robes to warm the shivering, protect the tender-skinned and make you feel very swagger on the beach, run from $1.95 to $5.95 at GOLDSMITH'S. With warmer weather, you women who didn't get your suits last week will want to know again about the Jantzen suits for you at GOLDSMITH'S . . . there's such a variety — a suit for every type of figure, every degree of modesty and every size pocketbook. The most outstanding ensemble of the season is a Wisp-O-Silk suit of gay splashy flowers on a dull background . . . adjustable back . . . bra-top . . . one piece suit of knitted silk combined with Lastex. The suit alone is $5.95, but who'd want the suit alone after seeing the Beachette of same pattern that goes with the suit, either as a dress or cape . . . the outfit entire will cost you $10.95 and make you the envy of every woman on the beach. Other smart Jantzen suits are as low as $4.95.

What could be sweeter than having your meals cooked by electricity while you're out having fun? You can do just that with a Westinghouse Adjust-O-Matic Roaster . . . a big efficient electric oven in 2 feet of shelf space, with capacity to cook complete dinner for 8 to 10 persons at only a few cents cost. It makes inexpensive meats deliciously tender — reduces shrinkage, preserves healthful food values, bakes cakes, pies, puddings, keeps food hot for hours. Has wide temperature range, thermostat maintains selected heat automatically, from summer heat to searing heat at touch of control dial. The price includes enamel inset, lifting rack and trivet; and detachable cord, three heat-proof glass cooking dishes, standard sizes, two with covers. And the price at the OHIO PUBLIC SERVICE CO. is only $19.95 special. You can use your credit and arrange easy terms if you wish.

More good news for the thrifty housewife . . . a new mincer manufactured by the Foley Mfg. Co. . . . it flecks parsley in jig time, minces an onion (that's a real break!) or mint leaves . . . chops pickle, pimento, green pepper and nut meats in less time than ever before. It's brand new . . . it's only $1 . . . and I shouldn't have to tell you that it's on sale at the store that makes unusual efforts to help the housewife and make her tasks lighter — MARTIN'S HARDWARE, of course.

HIGH COURT TO HEAR OLD SUIT

$25,000 Damage Case Against County, Filed 4 Years Ago, Argued Again Today.

A $25,000 damage suit against Richland county commissioners, which has been in county, district and state courts for the past four years, was to be argued before the Ohio Supreme court for the second time today.

Started by the late Mrs. Nora Elizabeth Olds of near Lexington as the ersult of a nautomobile accident at her home in 1933, the suit was first decided in favor of the county. At a second trial last fall, however, a jury returned a verdict for $1,500 against the commissioners.

The county, represented by Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott and Atty. J. V. Will, then appealed the decision, and the district court of appeals upheld the $1,500 verdict.

The hearing at Columbus today will be on the commisisoners' appeal to the Supreme court.

Mrs. Olds died after her suit was started and the case was continued by her husband, Harry Olds. He is represented by Attys. Lewis Brucker and H. M. Rust.

BACK IN CELL

Inmate Who Fled From Reformatory 2 Months Ago Returned.

A Mansfield reformatory inmate who escaped two months ago was back in his cell today following his return from Monmouth, Ill., yesterday by institution guards.

The fugitive is Edward Wickham, 26, who was received at the reformatory July 11, 1934, from Stark county to serve a one to 15 year term for burglary and larceny. Capt. Arthur L. Glattke said Wickham escaped from E dormitory on April 9.

Ohio To War On Carbon Monoxide Auto Fatalities

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Carbon monoxide, deadly gas which has killed many motorists, is being warred upon by the Ohio health department.

Assisted by state highway patrolmen, a group of doctors and industrial commission representatives, the health department takes a gas detecting apparatus on the highway to gather material pertinent to the actions of the fatal fumes.

Sometimes commercial vehicles are halted, made to proceed for two miles with all windows closed. An expert determines the amount of gas present in the machine at the end of the run.

Drivers are questioned as to the distance they are traveling, their working hours, previous accidents or illnesses, and then given tests which determine the amount of carbon monoxide in their blood.

SPONSORS CAMP

'Y' Daytime Sessions to Open Next Monday.

Registrations opened today at the Y. M. C. A. for the first summer daytime camp to be sponsored by the "Y." The camp will open Monday morning and will be held on a 25-acre tract of land on the Park avenue west road, near Home road.

Any boy in Mansfield over nine years of age is eligible to attend, Ralph B. Chapman, general secretary at the "Y," said.

The recreational program includes hikes, nature study, softball and baseball, horseshoe pitching, archery, volleyball and bicycle riding.

Camp activities will be under the general supervision of Donald Cram, "Y" physical director, and Chapman, camp director. They will be assisted in the recreational program by John Fike, a WPA supervisor. C. A. Hassinger will be in charge of the rifle range, and Russell Von Wider will have charge of swimming and life instructions. Assisting with instructions in photography will be Robert Tobias and Wilton Morkel.

The camp committee is made up of Dean Eckert, chairman, Norman Wolfe, Henry Huston, Jerry Hayes, Glenn Robinson, Harry Lantz, Dr. C. W. Frickman, and Ira Fisher, president of the Hermit club.

FILES FOR COMMISSIONER

BUCYRUS—William McHenry Republican candidate for county commissioner, has filed his petition with H. Raymond Kiess, clerk of the county election board. McHenry is one of three Republicans seeking the nomination. The winner will oppose County Commissioner Clarence Oberlander.

Officer Kills Wife, Other Man

Mrs. Phyllis Lewe
..."shoot me, too, John"

Patrolman John Lewe
..."she giggled"

Surprising his wife and her sweetheart in an automobile on a downtown street in Chicago, Patrolman John Lewe, 53, shot and killed the other man, Harry Johnson, 40. Then when his wife, Phyllis, also 40, said, "You might as well shoot me, too, John," the officer shot and killed her, too. Lewe then waited for police to come to arrest him. The patrolman said he was prompted in his shooting by his wife's giggle as he tried to talk the two into not seeing each other any more.

OPENS MONDAY

Y. W. to Accept Registrations for Summer Camp Friday.

The annual Y. W. C. A. daytime camp will open at 9 a. m. Monday with a general assembly at the Y. W. building. Registrations for the camp will be accepted tomorrow.

Twice weekly all of the girls will get together, once each Monday morning at assembly and again on each Friday night for a frolic at the Y. W. All other classes will be conducted in separate units.

Miss Janette Waring, staff secretary, will be general director of the sports division with more than 25 volunteer supervisors on her staff. Swimming classes will be held at Liberty and North Lake parks; tennis at Johns park, Prospect, and Liberty parks and the Y. W. court on Park avenue west, and archery at South park and Liberty park.

Handicraft classes will be held at the Y. W. and the recreation room at Liberty park, with Miss Margaret West as supervisor. Joseph Matthews will direct the classes in Bible stories and drama at the Y. W. First aid classes, under the direction of Harker A. Enlow of the Red Cross, will be conducted at Liberty and Middle parks.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Jimmy Thompson is our boy in the open . . . Even if he doesn't win he certainly won't make a sucker out of you. . . . George Parnassus has rounded up 50,000 iron men to guarantee Henry Armstrong if he will defend his welterweight title against Ceferino Garcia. . . . Sam Chapman, the California collegian, who has put new life into the Athletic, was recommended to Connie Mack by old Ty Cobb and Connie signed the youngster without even having him scouted.

GULDAHL'S CHANCES TO REPEAT IN OPEN ARE REMOTE

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

DENVER—(INS)—One of the most deceptive and treacherous courses in the country and against the picturesque background of snow-capped mountains, 170 of America's top flight golfers today start a 72-hole three-day battle for the 42nd annual National Open championship at Cherry Hills.

By late Saturday evening, one man will loom forth as the 1938 champion and to him will go a big silver cup, a check for $1,000 and the opportunity to cash in on his fame.

Tall, dark and handsome Ralph Guldahl, of Madison, N. J., the 1937 winner of the "open," was among the large field of amateurs and professionals. Good as he is, the chances were rather remote that he will "repeat."

A score of 284, even par, should be good enough to win the tournament, in the opinion of the golf sharps. Guldahl himself said he didn't think there was an entrant good enough or lucky enough to smash his record of 281 set last year over the comparatively easy Birmingham, Mich., links.

Bookmakers here were laying even money that 285 would not be broken and in view of the erratic scoring in the practice rounds the press has jacked the possible total up to 288.

"I'll take 290 and let 'em shoot," declared the veteran Gene Sarazen after giving his woods and irons a workout on the course.

In the practice rounds only three golfers were able to smash par, which is 71 for 18 holes. Sammy Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., one of the favorites, burned up the course Monday with a 68, and yesterday afternoon Jimmy Hines, of Great Neck, N. Y., the metropolitan champion, and Harold Jug McSpaden, of Winchester, Mass., turned in cards of 69.

The field sparkles with famous golf names—such players as Harry Cooper, Tommy Armour, Bobby Cruickshank, Ed Dudley, Olin and Mortie Dutra, Abe Espinosa, Willie Hunter, Paul Runyan, Horton Smith, Denny Shute, Jimmy Thomson, Frank Walsh and George Von Elm.

Not since the days when Bobby Jones was a star attraction has public interest run so high as here in Denver and officials of the United States Golf association were predicting huge galleries throughout the play. The advance sale has been terrific.

John Montague, the widely publicized golfing personality, was among the spectators. The powerful, ruddy-faced "Monty" declared he figured 283 will be good enough to win. He minimized the "toughness" of Cherry Hills, characterizing it as "a beautiful, well-laid-out course that will force the golfers to use their noodles."

Montague revealed that he and George Von Elm plan to start on a round-the-world golfing tour in about ten days. He said about 30 matches already have been lined up in this country for the pair and that England, Australia and other countries have indicated a desire to see him and Von Elm in action.

Another notable spectator was the colorful Walter Hagen, who failed to qualify. Hagen and Montague attracted as much attention from the fans as some of the star competitors.

Nearly 10,000 persons already have watched the practice rounds. It is expected that fully 7,000 people will be out Saturday to view the final rounds.

Legionnaires Could Learn From Veigel What Type of Club They Engage Sunday

AL VEIGEL, who hurled for the Mansfield Red Sox last year, could tell Dewey Durant a thing or two about what his American Legion club will encounter Sunday when it meets the Lancaster Moose in a Boosters Day game at the Fairground.

The former Mansfield right hander had the misfortune to make his debut as a member of the Coshocton Central Ohio league team against the lodgemen last Sunday, and he came out second best.

Veigel, who was unable to gain his stride with Dewey Stover's Moultrie, Ga., club this season, dropped a 3 to 1 decision to the Moose.

The once great high school pitcher of Tuscarawas, O., yielded 10 hits, while Coshocton was able to obtain only six off the delivery of Peters, who is expected to go to the mound against Mansfield Sunday.

This was the first victory for the Moose team, which is now looked upon as a serious title threat as Coshocton stacks up as one of the stronger aggregations in the circuit.

Mansfield is now in a tie with Coshocton for fourth place, and it must win Sunday to keep from dropping into the second division.

Dissatisfied with the performance of several of the Legionnaires in last Sunday's game, Durant plans to put a strengthened lineup on the field against Lancaster.

The identity of the players Durant is attempting to obtain to bolster the club has not been revealed.

A ticket sale is now being conducted to assure a record crowd for the Boosters Day tussle. The attendance at this game will determine the future of the Legionnaires in the strong semi-pro league, according to Durant.

The crowds at the home games to date have been exceedingly poor.

Canzols Try for Two Wins This Week-End

Jeff Holmquist's Club Meets Colored Elks Saturday, Invade Perrysville Sunday.

KING'S CANZOLS, who have won three out of seven games played to date, will try for a couple of victories in appearances this week-end.

The Canzol team will play the Mansfield colored Elks at Tillman's park, formerly Sunset field, at 2:30 p. m. Saturday, and go to Perrysville Sunday.

The Elks are composed of former members of the Empire Giants, and will be playing their first game of the year on their home field.

Manager Jeff Holmquist's team on Sunday meets the club which trimmed the Mohican Chevrolets, 4 to 3, last Sunday.

Vet to Hurl.

Moody, a 43-year-old World war veteran, who allowed the Chevrolets five hits and struck out 12, will probably oppose the Canzols, Holmquist said.

Gil Weigand, one of the better younger hurlers in the city, will oppose the colored club Sunday, with Al Boyer the likely choice for Sunday's contest.

Resume Fight In Club Loop

The Schoolmasters and Zent's Radios will continue their dogfight for the Y. M. C. A. Club league leadership Friday when the weekly games are staged. The two teams are undefeated.

The Schoolmasters will meet the Wesco club at Empire field, and the Radiomen tackle the Hermit club at North park. The Knights of Columbus tackle the Catholic Foresters at Liberty park, and Local No. 40 meets the J. A. C. club at Prospect park in the other games.

VIE AT POSSUM RUN

Today's matches in The News-Journal Class B golf league at Possum Run follow: News-Journal vs. Central Fruit, Al's Kicks vs. Elks, Bissman Grocers vs. O. P. S., Metal Vaults vs. Auxter Motors.

BEATHA, MEHL LEAD LOCAL 40 IN VICTORY

Scoring all but one of its runs in the third and fourth innings, Local No. 40 trimmed the South Main church softball team, 8 to 5, at Williams field yesterday. Beatha and Mehl cracked out four and three hits, respectively, to lead the winners.

Tony Schadek Leads Scoring

Rolls Out a 36 to Pace Westinghouse League.

Tony Schadek won medal honors in the opening day of play in the Westinghouse golf league at Possum Run yesterday with a card of 36. Playing with the No. 8 team, Schadek and Paul Jesson, who shot a 38, led their club to a 5 to 0 victory over No. 6, paced by Pete Zeides' 38 and Chuck Snyder's 39.

In the other matches, No. 9 took the measure of No. 10, 4 to 1; No. 1 defeated No. 3, 4 to 1; No. 7 blanked No. 5, 5 to 0, and No. 2 and 4 broke even with a point apiece with two matches being postponed.

Hi-Speeds Seek 6th Win Sunday At League Park

The Mansfield Hi-Speeds, who sport one of the better records compiled by Mansfield city teams this year, will go after their sixth victory of the season Sunday when they engage Columbus Grandview of the Southern Ohio league at League park at 3 p. m.

Manager Earl Herrick announced that Petey Beer will go to the mound for the Hi-Speeds. Beer will also be seeking his sixth triumph Sunday.

JOHNS PARK JUNIORS ANNEX DOUBLE-HEADER

Johns Park Juniors registered a pair of softball victories at the park yesterday when they defeated the Bombers, 15 to 6 and 19 to 13. B. Brown of the Park and Graham of the Bombers hit for the circuit in the first game in which Rose collected four hits for the winners. Home runs were hit by Rose, Sholaya and Henry of the Juniors and Graham and M. Burrage of the losers in the nightcap. Sholaya and Franzen obtained four hits apiece for the winners in the second tilt.

Boston Game Proves Feller Needs Rollie Behind Plate

Kid Phenom Again Knocked From Hill as His Favorite Backstop's on Sidelines With Injury.

BOSTON, Mass.—(U.P.)—Despite a fine showing thus far on their crucial eastern tour, the pennant chances of the Cleveland Indians cannot be considered rosy until Rollie Hemsley is again able to take his turn behind the plate.

As the Tribe sought to take the rubber game of their series from the Boston Red Sox here today it became evident that the presence of Hemsley is vital if Bob Feller, youthful right-handed star, is to pitch top notch ball.

With Hemsley handling him in great style through the earlier portion of the season, Feller had the poise of a veteran and worked in a smooth, steady fashion. Since his favorite backstop suffered a broken finger in a game at St. Louis the Iowa schoolboy has been a wobbly moundsman.

Costs Chance to Gain.

Feller was knocked out of the box for the second straight time yesterday as the Red Sox came from behind to snatch a 7 to 6 victory. Although Feller was not charged with the defeat, his performance was disappointing and cost the Indians a chance to make a substantial gain in the American league flag chase.

The Indians gave Feller a five-run lead in the third inning, but the youngster could not protect it. He gave up one run in the fourth, two in the fifth and was blasted from the hill in the seventh.

The first two men to face Feller in the seventh, Cramer and Nonnenkamp, singled and the Iowa farm boy gave way to Denny Galehouse. Galehouse struck out Ben Chapman, but then Jimmy Foxx hammered out his second home run of the game and his 17th of the season to plate three counters and put the Red Sox ahead.

The Indians tied the count for Galehouse with a run in the top half of the eighth, but the relief hurler could not throttle Boston and it tallied the winning run in the home half of the inning.

With the bases loaded and two out Galehouse hit Manager Joe Cronin to force in the winning run.

Archie McKain, the third Boston pitcher to see action, was credited with the triumph.

Lose but Gain.

Although beaten Cleveland increased its lead to 4½ games as the New York Yankees were defeated twice by Chicago.

INVESTIGATE KNOCKOUT OF YOUNGSTOWN BOXER

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—The Illinois athletic commission began an investigation today of the knockout of Jack Trammell, Youngstown, by Jimmy Adamick, Detroit heavyweight, in the second round of a scheduled 10-round fight last night.

All action of the bout was crowded into the second round. Trammell knocked Adamick down for a three count in the first minute. Adamick came up dazed and, gradually recovering, unleashed a left hook to Trammell's chin and the colored boy went down for the full count. Jeers and cries of "fake" came from the audience.

Miller Dairys Win In Ninth

Moritz' Hit Cinches Tilt With Page Dairys.

Miller's Dairys registered their second victory in three Y. M. C. A. Commercial league games yesterday when they defeated the Page Dairys, 7 to 6, at Liberty park.

Frank Moritz singled to score Kenny Lockhart with the winning run in the last half of the ninth to break a 6-all tie.

The Miller team collected 14 hits in the triumph, with Frank Moritz obtaining three to lead the attack. Art Burdine of the Millermen and Sandel of the Pages hit for the circuit.

Bill Moritz limited the Page team to eight scattered hits and struck out one.

The Dominion Electrics defeated the Tappan Stoves in a wild game at Prospect park to keep their record unmarred. The score was 17 to 12, with the Stoves tallying eight runs in the eighth. No box score was turned in for this game.

The other games played in the circuit yesterday were not turned in for publication.

OFFER TO YOUNG MEN

Who Hanker to Smoke a Pipe

MEN: Complete smoking pleasure comes only from smoking fine tobacco, and starting under ideal conditions. Through this unusual offer we are introducing to you pipe smoking at its best.

Here's Our Offer

First: Trial Packets of each of the three styles of world-famous Edgeworth, wrapped in heavy foil. Edgeworth, famous for more than 35 years, has always contained only the finest tobacco leaf on the market. We know that you cannot make good tobacco from inferior tobacco leaf any more than you can get the pleasure of choicest porterhouse steak for a rump steak price. We gladly pay premium prices to give you a finer smoke. This costly leaf is then manufactured to the high Edgeworth standard—better tobacco, made to smoke cooler, means no tongue bite and permits you to enjoy fully its enhanced flavor, greater mildness and richer aroma.

Second: A handsome Signature Pipe (made by Linkman) that has already been "Broken In" mechanically pre-smoked with genuine Edgeworth!. It's sweet and gentle from the start. Then to give you an added interest in this pipe, we engrave your own personal signature in gold color on the stem. No pipe so personal!

Edgeworth always carries a written guarantee of satisfaction, or money refunded. Edgeworth is on sale everywhere in convenient pocket tins at 15¢.

SPECULATIVE URGE LACKING IN EXCHANGE

Buyers, Sellers Continue to Display Timidity in Extending Commitments.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stock market leaders managed to edge upward today although both buyers and sellers continued to display exceptional timidity in extending commitments.

Bonds and commodities lacked definite trends. Most foreign securities markets were inclined to slip.

There was little outstanding in business or political news to stimulate the speculative urge and the majority of boardrooms were virtually deserted.

Further handicappying rail shares were estimates last week's freight loadings, to be published tomorrow, suffered a sharp and more than seasonal drop.

An offsetting factor were forecasts that, despite threats of strikes to prevent a reduction in railway wage scales, a compromise pay cut might be agreed upon at a national conference likely to be held at the end of the month or early in July.

Money to Loan

PERSONAL LOANS
$25 to $1,000

We've been lending money to people for twenty-five years, and we've learned a lot in that time. We know that most people are honest and willing to pay what they owe. We know, too, that a lot of worthy people have lost their good credit through hard times and temporary shortage. You can get a loan from us to make a new start and restore your credit.

LESS THAN 1-10 OF YOUR INCOME WILL REPAY A 20 MONTH LOAN

HOW MUCH DO YOU MAKE PER MONTH?	AMOUNT YOU CAN BORROW With Payments Less Than 10% Of Your Income
$ 85 per month	$125 Loan
100 per month	150 Loan
150 per month	230 Loan
200 per month	300 Loan
250 per month	390 Loan
300 per month	480 Loan
400 per month	650 Loan
500 per month	825 Loan

If you wish, you can get a larger loan with longer time to repay—on our new step-down payment plan. Phone us about it.

TAILSPIN TOMMY—More Dirty Work! By Hal Forrest

YESTERDAY A MAN, WHO CALLED HIMSELF JOEL SMELTZ, OFFERED TOMMY TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS IN CASH IF HE WOULD "THROW" THE BENDIX RACE IN FAVOR OF COMET AIRLINES. TOMMY REFUSED AND RAN THE MAN OFF THE AIRPORT. TODAY WE INTRODUCE BEN SNOOT, ACE PILOT FOR THE COMET COMPANY, WHO IS IN CONVERSATION WITH LEM POTTER, THREE-POINT MECHANIC.
NO! I CAN'T DO THAT, SNOOT! IT WOULD BE MURDER!
USE YOUR HEAD, DUMMY! TAIL-SPIN'LL BE WEARIN' A 'CHUTE, HE CAN BAIL AND YOU COLLECT ONE GRAND!
BUT... SUPPOSE HE...
YOU'RE NOT SUPPOSED TO SUPPOSE, POTTER! EITHER YOU DO IT...
OR I'LL TELL YOUR BOSS, PAUL SMITH, ABOUT YOUR SELLING THREE-POINT EQUIPMENT TO SNEADE!
NO! NO! NOT THAT! I'LL DO IT, SURE!
OKAY! ... NOW, LISTEN CAREFULLY!

PULLS LEVER, THINGS HAPPEN

Boy Crawls From 'Mystery' Locomotive Which Crashed.

NANCY, France—(AP)—Startled railway workers saw a modern 3,500 ton locomotive standing idle on a siding near Epinal suddenly start off with a rush, speed about a quarter of a mile and crash into a freight car loaded with merchandise.

They scrambled over the debris and found a 13-year-old boy frightened but uninjured in the cab. He explained he "just pulled a lever to see what would happen."

The boy spent the night in jail.

Knickerbocker Says Moves to Settle Nazi-Czech Crisis Merely 'Eye-Wash.'

ors will be kept until the end of June, when a new class will relieve them.

This means that Czechoslovakia intends to maintain an army of at least 300,000 fully mobilized on the German frontier until she is convinced there is no more danger of the sort that confronted her May 21.

That danger consisted in her belief that there were concentrated on the Czech-German border masses of storm troopers and Hitler guards in civilian clothing, ready to cross the frontier at a given signal on the night of May 21 and join the Sudentan Germans in a defense against an alleged Czech massacre.

According to this plan, the Reich Germans plus the Sudentan Germans would have swept behind the sparsely held frontier defense and then, being met by the Czechoslovak army, would have called for help from Berlin. Thereupon the German army would have come into action.

Already See Fate.

Theer is not one Czech in 100,000 today who does not believe that only mobolization on May 20 saved this country from the fate of Austria. All believe also that this fate awaits them if the army is demobilized.

They realize full well that the decisive role would be played by France and England, and that they could not hold out without them, but they know neither England nor France would help them if they were not prepared to help themselves. Therefore they will not demobilize.

Willard Man Wins 1937 Valor Award Of Highway Patrol

Fred S. Van Allen, a corporal in the Ohio highway patrol, today received the patrol's annual valor award for saving the life of Earl Yeager, of Salem, last Oct. 17, Associated Press dispatches reported.

Van Allen, the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Van Allen of Willard, has been a state patrolman for four years. His father is a retired railroader.

The ward, an engraved pistol, is donated yearly by O. W. Merrill, former state highway director.

Yeager, an automobile garage mechanic, went to the scene of an automobile accident near Kensington, Columbiana county, and came in contact with a high tension power line.

He had ceased breathing when Van Allen applied artificial respiration and shock treatment. Physicians credited the officer with saving Yeager's life.

Van Allen, formerly stationed at the Salem substation, is now located at Salem.

"Josette" Brings 'Em In.

"Josette," the Simone Simon-Robert Young-Don Ameche film romance, opened to a surprisingly good house Wednesday afternoon, and whether the closed food stores brought in the extra shekels at the box office, or the stars of the picture did the trick, will never be known, but the stars get the credit and the picture will remain through Saturday all day, instead of closing Friday as was originally planned. "Josette" offers a nice summer afternoon combination of comedy, romance and some music, and gives the lady of the tricky name a chance to sing. Bert Lahr and Joan Davis are a hilarious team of funsters and keep the action moving. Suppose you know it's at the Ohio.

Thrills In Entertainment.

One man's single handed fight against a well-entrenched band of outlaws in an old time cattle town offers exciting entertainment in George O'Brien's latest starring vehicle, "Gun Law," a Madison theater attraction for the last of the week. Set in Arizona, "Gun Law" depicts the activities of a federal marshall assigned to investigate lawlessness in Gunsight, a wild and woolly community in the Painted Desert. Enroute the marshall encounters a dying desperado. The Raven, and he assumes the latter's identity to ease his own admittance into Gunsight's criminal circles. With O'Brien are such old timers as Francis O'Brien, Neal Burns and Lloyd Ingraham, with Rita Oehmen as his leading lady.

"Life Returns."

Onslow Stevens, a good actor who has never had the breaks in Hollywood that he deserves, is one of the cast presented in "Life Returns" at the Majestic. Lois Wilson, who is now on tour with the stage hit "The Women," Lois January and Valerie Hobson are the adults in the picture with Stevens, while George Breakston plays the son. The story is an unusual one of a brilliant surgeon and physician who loses his career, his patients, his wife and the respect of the world and his son, in a lifelong experiment to find the secret formula that will restore life after death. But in the end he finds it —in a strange experiment on his son's dog. A Western film rounds out the bill.

Light Comedy.

One of the light, romantic comedies of the series made by Gene Raymond and Ann Sothern is offered at the Ritz tomorrow and Saturday, along with a Hopalong Cassidy adventure. Ann Sothern is an orphan who is left with a raft of debts and three rather helpless men, Billy Gilbert, Parkyakarkus and William Brisbane. Her aunt is Helen Broderick and Victor Moore is a bookie—all of which spells light, breezy comedy. Miss Sothern wears some stunning costumes, and looks like a photographic model. There is a surprise ending, arrangement by the love-struck Mr. Raymond and designed to bring the haughty beauty to his arms—with a wedding in one of his company's trucks.

FRANCE GIVEN WARNING SHE MUST AID HER FISHING FLEET

(By International News Service)

PARIS—France must help her fishing industry or her defenses will suffer.

This warning has been given Minister of Merchant Marine M. de Chappedelaine by a delegation of fishing fleet owners.

France, in the course of another conflict, might not have at her disposal the flotilla of fast coastal patrol boats (converted fishing vessels) that proved so valuable during the World war, the fishermen warned, unless immediate help is given their ailing industry.

The delegation explained to the minister, who in the present government has returned to a post he has previously occupied, that their position is a drastic one.

Owing to the slump in French fisheries and to existing poor conditions of the market, the owners have not been able to renew their vessels for several years, with the result that many old ships which should have been laid up long ago are still in service.

The minister was in complete sympathy with the delegation both from the merchant marine point of view as well as that of national defense, and gave assurance that the government has the problem under consideration.

In 1920 the total fishing tonnage of France was nearly half a million tons, whereas in 1934 tonnage had dropped to 300,000. Exports nearly halved in that period.

Difference in the prices of fish on landing and in the Paris markets range from 300 to 2,000 per cent, according to the national economic council.

DREDGE TO AID DEEP SEA WORK

$50,000 Machine Operates 1,000 Feet Under Surface of Pacific Ocean.

(By United Press)

MOTEREY, Cal.—(UP)—Working of undersea gold and oil deposits at a depth of 1,000 feet has been made possible by the building here of a 10-ton deep sea dredge which has been put to a successful test.

The dredge, which was built at a cost of $50,000, is the result of 20 years of experimentation by John C. Williams, San Francisco engineer, and operates at a depth 10 times greater than heretofore possible.

So important is the perfection of the dredge considered, that its first demonstration was attended by officials of the navy, leading university experts, and engineers of some of the leading construction concerns of the United States.

It is believed the dredge will open up possibilities of entirely new and undeveloped undersea wealth. It is also expected to play an important role in its application to industry and undersea projects of all kinds.

On the occasion of its first test, it brought up for the first time in the world, appreciable quantities of sea bottom taken at a depth of 700 feet.

Numerous engineering difficulties had to be overcome to make the dredge workable.

KIDNAPED CASH BOY FOUND DEAD IN OLD ORCHARD

Suspect Leads G-Men to Body, Hidden Ransom; Authorship of Notes Confessed.

him as saying.

The sheriff said he became suspicious immediately, since the note, had it been slipped under the door, would have been folded. He questioned McCall closely, and later, while the suspect was helping the army of volunteer searchers hunt for the kidnap victim, he took McCall into custody and brought him to the FBI headquarters here.

McCall subsequently was released but was kept under surveillance by G-men day and night. He supposedly was re-arrested yesterday, but the exact time of his second arrest was not known

Appearance of the collegiate-looking suspect is in stark contrast with the callousness with which the crime was carried out He even borrowed an automobile and a gun from an uncle of the kidnap victim, supposedly in connection with the nefarious scheme.

He gave the excuse he wished to investigate a "suspicious-looking" automobile that he had seen in the community.

Word of the "break" in the case spread quickly, and as dawn came a crowd of curious began collecting on the street in front of the office building in which FBI headquarters are located

Officers took precautions to protect their prisoner from mob violence, for threats of lynching had swept all south Florida last week when the crime had been made known.

The greatest danger of violence will come when McCall is transferred from the FBI headquarters to the Dade county jail. Extra deputies have been sworn in to help guard McCall when the transfer is made.

At Princeton, the broken-hearted parents of the little victim once more went into seclusion

The child's father was in tears as he came to the door of their modest apartment. He declined to discuss the case.

The mother declined to appear.

To the sorrow of the loss of their only child was added that of the knowledge that a friend of long-standing was implicated in the crime

McCall and his wife formerly lived in an apartment in the Cash home, but had moved to another home a short distance away last April.

At first McCall is reported to have denied all knowledge of the crime, but after hours of grilling he finally broke down and agreed to lead officers to the child's body, it was reported

The unexpected break in the case came suddenly. A hint of what might be in the wind spread only an hour before when four carloads of roughly-clad G-men carrying shovels bustled their prisoner out of the headquarters of the F.B.I. here and sped away toward Princeton.

McCall, they said, directed them without hesitation to the orchard of Carl Chambers and led the way without faltering among the fruit trees.

Flashlights picked out the form of the curly-headed child there still clad in the pajamas he was wearing when snatched from his bed on the evening of Saturday, May 29. Tipping over a rock nearby, G-men found the crushed cardboard box in which the ransom had been paid

Bodily Badly Decomposed.

Hoover said the child's body was badly decomposed and indicated he had been dead for at least a week, being killed shortly after if not before James B Cash sr, handed over the $10,000 early last Tuesday in a vain attempt to obtain the safe return of his only child.

In that he was doomed to the same disappointment that has been the bitter fate of other parents and relatives of kidnap victims in the past few years. There was baby Charles A Lindbergh, 10-year-old Charles Mattson, Peter Levine, 12, and the elderly Charles S. Ross of Chicago, all of whom were slain by their abductors during ransom negotiations

Hoover said the boy's body was in such a bad state, it was hard to tell the exact manner in which he had been done to death and an autopsy was ordered as soon as the body was returned to a mortuary in Miami A cursory examination, indicated, however, that he had been choked and struck on the head with some heavy weapon.

Hoover Tells Story.

Summoning newsmen to his office upon their return Hoover made an informal statement. Without sleep himself for nearly 48 hours, he plainly showed the effects of the strain and spoke in nervous jerky sentences. He was still wearing boots and breeches he had donned in the hunt for the boy's body.

McCall, Hoover stated, became acquainted with the Cash family three summers ago and boarded at their house in 1937 and the early spring of this year during the tomato picking season when he worked in the fields.

Now married, the prisoner and his wife had lived at the Cash home until a comparatively few weeks ago when they moved to the cottage of one "Red" Lambert, according to Hoover

The house is at the intersection of Talahasse road and Sunset avenue and only a few yards from the spot at which Cash sr dropped the box of ransom money at a prearranged automobile headlight signal

Hoover refused to say whether Lambert and McCall's wife had also been connected with the plot, but it was believed the three were the trio reported taken in custody several days ago Hoover admitted McCall had been under questioning for more than two days before he broke

McCall was born in Jasper, Fla, on March 31, 1917. His mother still lives there. A brother is said to be the pastor of a Nazarene church in Ft. Lauderdale.

BARES KIDNAP CASE SOLUTION

Statement by Hoover Tells How G-Men Found Body of Slain Florida Boy.

"A third note was found at Wilson Cash's filling station at midnight May 30 directing Cash to go over the same route at 4 a m. May 31.

"Contact was made by Cash as he drove south of Tallahassee road at 4:10 a m, and the money contained in a shoe box was placed at the corner of Sunset drive and Tallahassee road by a telegraph pole. The signal to pay was given by a flash of a flashlight in a fruit grove We have in custody Franklin Pierce McCall.

"McCall has made a full and complete statement admitting the writing of the ransom notes and obtaining of the money and we recovered all of the ransom money at 4 a m, Wednesday, in a corner of an old orchard owned by Charles Chambers on the south side of Sunset drive between the Dixie highway and Tallahassee road

"We also found the box in which the money had been paid It was torn to pieces and the pieces were under a stone 250 feet north of Sunset drive, directly in front of the house of Joseph Hilliard, where McCall placed it Hilliard lives on the south side of Sunset road.

"McCall admits writing all of the ransom notes and giving the signal for the payoff and taking the money and hiding it and the box

"We will confer with George A. Worley, state attorney, because probably the case will be tried in the state court"

DINNER CLOSES TRAFFIC MEET

Over 200 at Annual One-Day Session Here, Called Best in Group's History.

More than 200 representatives of the traffic departments of transportation companies and industrial concerns in the mid-west attended a dinner at Westbrook country club last night at the close of the annual outing and golf tournament of the Central Ohio Traffic club

Described as the largest and most successful tourney ever sponsored by the organization, yesterday's sessions attracted traffic men from a number of states, with one coming from San Francisco, and another from New York

The group represented 38 railroads, four steamship lines, two carloading firms, nine trucking firms and 12 Mansfield industries.

G W Stephens, president of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, was toastmaster at last night's dinner session Golf prizes were awarded by C E. Denney, Cleveland, president of the Erie railroad

Approximately 150 golfers participated in the matches, with Marshall Clark of Ashland taking the low score award. Clark had a 75.

The traffic club's next meeting will be in August at the Ashland country club

TABER DECLINES

Grange Leader Says He Won't Be Candidate For Governor.

COLUMBUS — (UP) — Louis J. Taber, of Columbus, master of the National Grange, said today that his responsibility to the farm organization would make it impossible for him to seek the nomination for Ohio governor this year.

"The decline in farm prices, continued unemployment and need for non-partisan national cooperation between agriculture, business and labor will prevent my entering the primaries," Taber said.

Some Things Graduates Must Learn.

WHAT thoughts are filling the minds of the young men and women who are being graduated this evening from Mansfield Senior high school and from St. Peter's parochial high school?

And what of the other hundreds of high school graduates from Richland county's township high schools and the high schools of vicinity cities, as well as the hundreds of thousands of June graduates in the entire country?

Except from hearsay, these young people know little of any period other than what is being called a "depression," nor have they had fair opportunity to judge the richness of their heritage from past generations of sturdy Americans who built up the wealth that is now being so recklessly dissipated through governmental policies based on the fallacious thinking of political opportunists and academic visionaries.

No more serious indictment of high school thinking has appeared this year than the red-ink headline of the high school paper in a small Colorado town—"WPA, Here We Come."

If such sardonic humor represents the attitude of any considerable percentage of present-day young people toward their country and toward their own future—then, indeed, is their plight a sad one and the future dark for the United States of America.

If, however, this can be interpreted as no more than the defeatist attitude customarily adopted by a small minority to excuse their own lethargy and inadequacy, it may then be anticipated that a large majority will continue to find their way toward employment, and at least a fair measure of success—as has been done by many millions of Americans in this and past generations.

All of the boys and girls now being graduated from high schools were born after the close of the World war—few of them have any recollection of the days preceding the financial crash of 1929.

They may be excused for having gained the impression that the present saturnalia of governmental waste, penalizing of success, discouraging of private enterprise and carrying a previously prosperous nation to the verge of bankruptcy is a normal condition which can go on indefinitely and about which they need not feel concern.

They must find out soon, however, that THIS IS NOT A NORMAL CONDITION—THAT IT WAS BROUGHT ON BY TEMPORARY ADOPTION OF POLICIES OF GOVERNMENT OUT OF ACCORD WITH PRINCIPLES AND PRACTICES ON WHICH THIS COUNTRY HAD PROGRESSED AMAZINGLY THROUGH A HUNDRED AND FIFTY YEARS.

Among those who have attained to high school education, or better, there must be clearer understanding of the CAUSES of the present unsettled condition, and widespread fear for the future, rather than docile acceptance of this condition as inescapable—or permanent.

They must understand that progress is a slow process, made so by the variation in physical and mental status of the human elements upon which advancement is dependent.

They must learn something about politics and politicians, and, as men and women, they must assume a share of the responsibility of electing capable, honest and dependable persons to public offices—from the president of the United States down through the state, county and city offices.

They must realize that only physical or mental incapacitation justifies dependence on public aid, and that, as was said by Emerson, "Nature requires that each man should feed himself. If happily his fathers have left him no inheritance, he must go to work, and by making his wants less or his gains more, he must draw himself out of that state of pain and insult in which she forces the beggar to lie. She gives him no rest until this is done; she starves, taunts and torments him, takes away warmth, laughter, sleep, friends and daylight, until he has fought his way to his own loaf."

It is not an easy way that faces the youthful graduates—IT HAS NEVER BEEN AN EASY WAY TO WORTHWHILE ACHIEVEMENTS.

Some will succeed—some will fail. Just as some have succeeded and some have failed in the past.

There are quite definite rules for either success or failure. The government has little to do with making the rules. A little study and a little observation will disclose these rules to any interested graduate.

State Ads That Pay.

MISSISSIPPI has found that a good highway and good advertising make an extremely profitable combination. The state's advertising commission, state-created and state-operated, spent $6,199 in a promotion campaign and got an 8,000 per cent return.

The new road is the first paved north-south highway through Mississippi. The promotion material consisted of ads in metropolitan daily newspapers in the east, middle west and south. More than 11,000 lines were used in 24 dailies. The ads appeared once a week, beginning the middle of December and running through January. More than 4,000 coupon replies were received in answer to the displays. The state commission has increased its budget for this year's campaign to $15,000.

The biggest returns were in gasoline sales tax increases, which jumped $433,070 in three months. Communities along the route reported increased business, too. Restaurants said their gain was 25 per cent. The coast hotels had 30 per cent more tourist registration. Points of interest elsewhere in the state reported more tourist visitors.

Mississippi has done a fine job of boosting, for itself, for newspapers generally, and for advertisers quick to get the point of such a tale.

Word comes from the west that a high wind tore the roof from a barn and replaced it upside down—probably leading passers-by to assume that it was a federal project.

There is no money to pay the $45 a month pension for the aged that was voted in Colorado—so it might as well have been $200 a month that was promised.

There's probably nothing in a name, so Gillette won by more than a close shave.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

SHUTTING DOWN of copper mines by copper companies, to maintain "profitable" price levels has raised once more an economic question that is disturbing the world: Should production be restricted in order to maintain price levels?

If price levels are maintained through curtailed production, actual wealth drops, an inflated price is maintained, and buying fails to pick up momentum. Thus, business continues bad, men remain out of work and stockholders receive no return. This analysis comes not from the New Dealers, but from Wall Street itself. There is, in fact, a revolt in Wall Street against the Old Deal manner of thinking within the Street.

WAGES.

Southern leaders of the future probably will look back with unbelief on some of the statements made by southern senators in opposition to the wages and hours bill. One of the arguments presented was that the south could not afford to maintain a minimum wage rate of $11 a week, for a full week, or 25 cents an hour.

HAGUE.

Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, "dictator" of New Jersey, who has been laying violent hands on free speech, is slated for the toboggan in the Democratic party, it is becoming evident. The New Deal heel that kicked Tammany into insensibility is getting ready, in the opinion of observers.

Much has been said that President Roosevelt fears to lose Hague's boss-controlled congressional delegation. This may not be the case, as events may prove. The president can do much more damage to Hague than Hague can do to himself. He can take away every bit of patronage to the Hague-controlled congressional delegation.

DEVALUATION.

Europe has been expecting further devaluation of the dollar. The Roosevelt administration, however, has been making every effort to steer away from it.

If, however, farm prices sink a great deal more, there may be devaluation. The current gold value of the dollar is equal to 59.06 per cent of its old value. Under the law, the president can cut approximately one-sixth further. That would give a gold content one-half the old value.

BRAZIL.

Brazil, which is unable to meet debt service on its external debt, is believed to be planning to reverse the present nationalistic Latin-America trends—and make strong overtures for foreign capital. Brazil has been built up through foreign capital.

Thus, the strenuous efforts to crush Nazi movements — and to proclaim that there is political tranquility.

PRESS AGENTRY?

The new attacks on government publicity bureaus are angering some New Dealers, who charge malice. The attacks originated just as various governmental agencies began to issue comprehensive reports on delinquencies of various states in assuming their share of federal social welfare laws.

I have before me now a summary of progress of the Social Security board, which is a virtual non-partisan court. This summary shows that one state—Virginia—still had no plan, as of March 31, for aiding the needy aged. Ten states had no plans for aid to the needy blind. Eleven states had no plans for aid to dependent children.

Each commission, each department does issue innumerable reports. I find the majority of them essential. I only wish (a) that every citizen could read them, to learn exactly what is going on; and (2) that every company in which one owns securities were as complete in making reports to stockholders and bondholders.

Timely Editorial

Marital Scorecard.

The latest, apparently, is a marital scorecard which those contemplating matrimony are supposed to study, check up and thus act accordingly and well. By it Dr. David B. Vaughn of Boston university expects the young to "counteract the old American custom of marrying just because some young man or woman falls in love." But it won't work, at least not to the expectation of Dr Vaughn.

True, some examinations ought to be made. Health, according to Dr. Vaughn, tops the list, and there are those who are dissuaded from marrying because of ill health. Religion, unselfishness, sense of responsibility, ambition, wealth, artistic temperament and many other qualities and states are listed on the scorecard and there really out to be some thought given to each and all of these. Perhaps more thought is given than we realize.

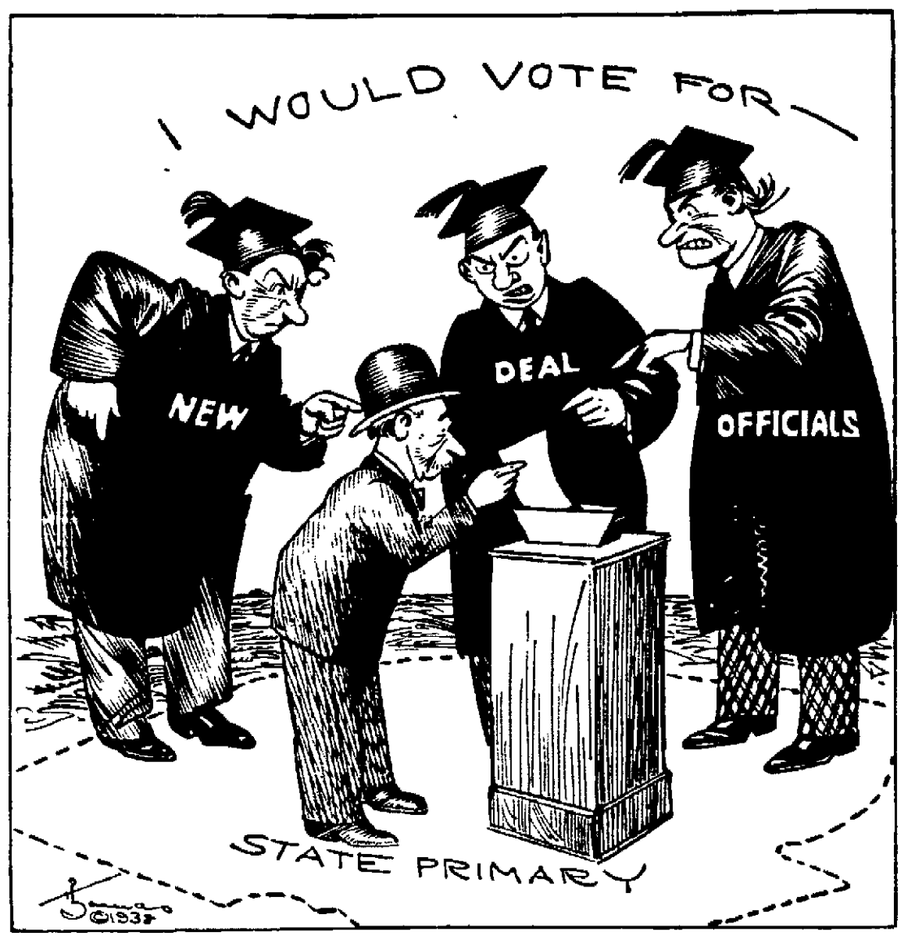
But in spite of all that is sane, rational and to be desired, when love smites a young couple all considerations are forgotten. They have no use for scorecards. They couldn't read them intelligently when they are so smitten with each other.—Ohio State Journal.

As Others See It

Just Wait!

Women's hats may look awfully funny this year, but it is some small consolation to know they'll look twice as funny when we look back on them ten years hence.—Christian Science Monitor.

WILL THEY KEEP THIS UP?



Railroad Capitalization Defended

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—The railroads are one of our worst economic headaches—perhaps THE worst.

Try to analyze what is the matter with them and the analyst gets two opposing reactions. There seems to be no middle ground. Some time ago I wrote an article attributing most of the transportation lines' present-day troubles to their own early misdeeds and mismanagements. Immediately I got an answer from the American Association of Railroads' publicity bureau, explaining to me how wrong I was. To be fair, I published this answer. Budd McKillips, staff expert for Labor, the transportation unions' organ, saw it and pointed out to me the numerous errors he said it contained. I published Budd's story. Now, rebutting Budd, I have a letter from R. Harland Shaw, a Chicago authority of note.

Accordingly, I tell Mr. Shaw's side.

IN REPLY—

"It is not for me," he says, "to pontificate about so highly controversial a matter, although I have had a number of years' experience with it. What moves me to write are contradictions of logic, so obvious that they ought to be explained before we go any farther.

"I raise three points, usually overlooked in this fighting for public favor."

MUCH UNPROFITABLE

"The first point," continues my correspondent, "is that much real investment in railroad property is unprofitable. This is true of both remote and recent expenditures. Whether or not interest is a burden depends not so much on whether full value for the outlay was gotten at the time it was spent, but on whether the expenditure does any good now. The bystander can criticize the policies of some railroads as wise, and some as unwise.

"The American Association of Railroads and the brotherhoods both are right. The roads can show property values substantially in excess of their liabilities; the brotherhoods can show that a good deal of this property might just as well be water.

"My own opinion is that there was a lot of foolishness in railroad capital expenditures, based on the careless assumption that things would go on forever as they were up to 1926. Still, it appears unfair for the brotherhoods to generalize loosely about watered capitalizations."

"NOT OVER-CAPITALIZED"

Second point: "The investigation sponsored by the late Senator La Follette," relates Mr. Shaw, "proved conclusively that the existing railroad plant could not be replaced by the expenditures of an amount equal to the total capitalization of the railroads.

"In other words, on a replacement-less-depreciation basis, the roads were not and are not overcapitalized.

"On a value-in-use basis, perhaps they are. So are a lot of businesses.

"If the roads could have foreseen the severity of obsolescence to which many of their properties would be subject, they would have avoided many expenditures and written off many others. I readily can share criticism of them for not being more conservative on this score, but it hardly seems to justify name-calling."

SECURITY HOLDERS' LOSS

Third point: "Since no one," says Mr. Shaw, "can GUARANTEE the profitableness of a given investment, and since the roads MUST raise a cerain amount of money from time to time (maybe not so much as they think) there always will be the innocent third parties—the bond holders.

"Mr. McKillips' attitude appears to be, toward all holders of marginal railroad securities, 'You must take the rap. We won't.'

"In practice, the security holders will take, and, to a large extent, have taken the rap. About all that the managements are doing is to try to spread the rap around."

SINS IN 1920-'30

In conclusion, observes Correspondent Shaw, "I must add an objection to your statement that the stock-watering and over-bonding date back a generation or two.

"There was plenty of it, but what is causing the roads' trouble today consists more substantially of bonds sold in the 1920-'30 period. Many roads did too much of a good thing and some were plain foolish. The sins of earlier days were mostly washed out."

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Sunday, June 9, 1918.

Drop in temperature resulted in light frost.

Members of Knights of Pythias lodge attended memorial service at St. Matthew's Lutheran church.

Edward W. Butz, 44, died.

Several burglary attempts were reported from Longview avenue vicinity.

Miss Edna Sanford was among graduates of Columbus School for Girls.

A. E. Witter went to Detroit on a several days business trip.

Rev. William R. Polhamus, Central Methodist pastor, was called to Cleveland by the death of his brother.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ray Warner, 439 Springmill street.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, June 9, 1933.

Dr. Arthur W. Evans, lecturer and humorist, delivered commencement address to 172 graduates at Senior high school.

Thirty-seven candidates for city primary elections had filed at closing time.

J. Howard Gongwer was elected president of the Community Fund executive committee.

Rev. Herbert S. Garnes went to his alma mater, Gettysburg (Pa.) college for commencement exercises.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stevens, Woodland.

You and Your Nation's Affairs

Explosion Can Come Quickly.

By WALTER E. SPAHR
Professor of Economics, New York University.

The most certain thing about the government's "pump-priming" program is that it will increase the national debt which has already reached a reckless height. But there are good reasons for believing that the other consequences which will flow from this program of government spending will very probably prove most unfortunate in the long run.

Past experience with "pump-priming" in this country would seem to indicate that such a program cannot bring about a sound and sustained economic recovery while other destructive governmental policies are operating. The latter continue to be a most important part of the general picture, and there is no evidence which would indicate that those destructive policies are to be removed. To pump money into circulation with one hand while business confidence is being destroyed with the other is but a continuation of the policies that have brought this country to its present unhappy state of affairs—with its huge public debt, business stagnation, heavy unemployment, widespread human distress, and an increasing bitterness and pessimism among our people.

This so-called "pump-priming" does not, and cannot, reach the roots of our present difficulties. These roots lie in a wide variety of unsound governmental policies which have seriously impaired business confidence. In the face of a continuation of these policies and of this general lack of confidence, the piling up of a greater federal deficit will increase the risk of destroying faith in the soundness of the government's credit and in the prospects of redeeming the outstanding paper currency.

This destruction of faith in the government's credit and paper currency can come quickly. The present very high price of government securities is not so much a manifestation of the people's belief in the soundness of the government's credit as it is evidence of the stagnation in business enterprise and of the inability of investors to find inviting openings for investment. Proof of this is seen in the fact that when our business was prosperous, when capital funds were flowing freely into private enterprise, and when the government's budget was balanced and the government debt was being reduced, the prices of government bonds were lower and the interest rate on them was higher than at present.

The present extremely high prices of government securities are comparable to the steam pressure in a boiler just before an explosion. We may avoid the explosion, but, on the other hand, we may not. We are steadily increasing the pressure; it is the highest in the nation's history, and no man is warranted in asserting that we are showing good judgment or that we are not closely approaching a disastrous explosion. People are now merely guessing as to how high this steam pressure can rise in the gauge with safety. We are operating now in an area lying beyond the zone which we have learned is reasonably safe. To go further in the direction which all experience should teach us is wrong, is to cast prudence to the winds and to play a reckless and irresponsible part.

To continue this spending on the ground that there is no alternative, or that there is no better way to bring about a recovery in business, is to deny the value of past experiences. The sharp recovery of 1921-1922, for example, provides ample proof that business can recover when the government economizes rather than spends. Other recoveries provide additional evidence of the same kind.

To the extent that this renewed and expanded government spending should stimulate business activity, the stimulation will be artificial and it will merely complicate the economic situation and only postpone an even sadder day of reckoning.

Since the economics of this matter is relatively simple and clear, can one suppose anything other than the program is either conceived in ignorance or is being pursued for political reasons with the thought that "after us the deluge"?

Life Isn't Fair!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

"LIFE ISN'T FAIR," you say bitterly.

Of course it isn't. Life, per se, is neither fair nor civilized. It is still 90 per cent jungle . . . with every animal in it trying to take advantage of every other animal.

But that condition is neither abnormal nor abominable. It is natural and inevitable.

Human life is still a new business. A short while ago man was little better than a gorilla. In his poor brain something fumbled feebly toward beauty and order. But his acts were the acts of a gorilla. He was cowardly and cruel, greedy and utterly selfish. He was . . . and often still is . . . an untamed beast.

YOU do not need to go to Africa to prove that fact. You can go into the slums of any great city and see people who have never risen much above the level of beasts.

You can walk those same streets and see something even more terrible — men and women who once were fine, but who under the pressure of hardship, are becoming beasts again.

And we go back to the beast with terrible ease. A little too much hunger or fear or hate or loneliness and the jungle has claimed us again. For the powers of darkness are still strong within us. And the gentle saint knows secret moments when he is a fiend.

And, painful as it may be, the greatest glory in human life is that inner struggle between the powers of darkness and the powers of light.

No—life isn't fair.

And you've no right to expect it to be fair.

You were born into a rough game. But rough though it is, it was a privilege to be born into that game. There's plenty of punishment in it but there's also plenty of profit.

There is laughter as well as weeping—there is joy as well as sorrow—and there is love as well as hate. And above all ugliness and cruelty, shines the dreams of nobler things to come.

Millions of other human beings—as sensitive as you—have found it worth while to endure the punishment of life and face the unfairness for the sake of that profit. Then why shouldn't you?

Everyone else on earth runs risks, takes wallops — why shouldnt you? Everyone else must learn how to dodge danger and plan action — why shouldn't you?

Why should you expect life to be peaceful and rosey — just for you? Why should you expect the other jungle inhabitants to forego all their natural, ferocious impulses and play pretty—just for you?

Are you such a weakling that you can't stand the gaff—and pay the price?

No, of course you're not. You're brave and you're smart and you're proud. But the trouble with you is—

YOU'RE STILL A CHILD.

You still hate to face horrid reality. You still like to live in dreams. And your pet dream is that you shall be handed happiness on a silver platter. Or, in other words, get your own way without a struggle.

GET OVER IT!

Life doesn't come that way. And it's a blessing it doesn't—or what a bunch of cream puffs we would be!

Life's a tough racket. And you've got to get tough and wise and quick on your foot to tackle it.

So stop your whining. Stop expecting people to play pretty and stop refusing to play with them until they do. You're just wasting the years by waiting like that. Life will NEVER be fair.

PUT AWAY YOUR KIDDIE DREAMS—AND START!

Essay For Dubs.

ALL my life I've been reluctantly impressed by that seemingly wise phrase: "If a thing is worth doing at all, it is worth doing well." . . . My father used to say it to me when I sawed a board crookedly, when I missed a nail and hit the board. Teachers have said it to me. And I've heard many an efficient soul say it to many an inefficient dub.

But lately I came upon a twisting of the phrase by that late, great, fat, pastmaster of paradox, Gilbert K. Chesterton of blessed memory. He took one look at that proverb and changed it to this: "If a thing is worth doing at all, it's worth doing BADLY."

And I submit that this should be the slogan of all dubs. Let them keep that forever in mind and they will be saved many a pain, many a twinge of humiliation, and they will be forever insulated from the jibes of the experts.

After all, the experts are few and the dubs are many. And I see no sense in adjusting all life to the powers of these uncanny mortals with perfect muscular co-ordination who do so easily what the great majority of us do with such difficulty, if at all. And take, I am sure, much less joy out of their endeavors than we do.

After all, the dub does have fun—whether he is swinging a golf club or a tennis racket, building a fence, shooting at a target, or playing bridge. . . . We know we'll never win any tournaments, we know we'll never make the headlines, but we don't care (very much)! We stick to the proposition that all men are not created equal, and its corollary that if a thing is worth doing at all it is worth doing even badly. We know in our hearts that there is NOT room at the top for everybody and we go our gait, even if it isn't a swift one.

The lads who quit trying as soon as they have convinced themselves they'll never be champions miss a lot of fun and narrow the circle of possible enjoyment. But who is willing to try anything more than ONCE and keep on trying it in the face of ridicule and condescension—there's my brother and there's my friend and I clasp his hand in lasting companionship. . . . Our horizon is boundless, our only change is for improvement, there is nowhere to go but up, and even though we do our heart's desire badly, we are grateful for the privilege of doing it at all

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—Investigation into the entertainment program for the summer months brings to light many interesting angles. The theatrical season is at low ebb and will offer little, with the exception of a few straggling openings, until frost. The roof gardens are opening, and the nightclubs (some of them at least) are holding their breath, undecided whether to close for the hot months. The trade in the next two weeks will definitely decide which will go and which will remain. I look for at least three well known clubs to call it a season and wait for October.

But there is plenty of entertainment on tap for New Yorkers and those who live in adjacent territories. The fishing positively is the best in many seasons, all metropolitan waters offering fine possibilities, even to wharf fishermen, who go after eels and carp. At least 50 boats wth hardened old salts as captains are available for those who take pleasure in deep sea angling. . . . The fluke, blues, bass are prime favorites, and the expense of an outing, which includes everything from food to tackle, is nominal.

THEN there are the Hudson river show boats which ply up to Bear Mountain and back after dark each evening, with music and dancing but no drinking with the exception of red soda pop and ice water. They have floor shows, if you aren't bored with floor shows, which happens to be the case with a lot of people after a long winter and a longer, dismal spring, sitting at tables around postage-stamp floors.

For the more serious students of play there are some fine lecture programs and open air symphonies, plus the revivals of operettas and musicals at the great open air arena on Long Island. One may hear Sinclair Lewis talk; one may follow the National league catfight between the Giants and the Cubs, plus the American league shindig with the Yankees at the Stadium. Baseball is a major item here for five months each year, as the attendance records prove.

THERE are pleasant tours to historic centers at such small cost that one wonders how it is managed; there are the Dutch gardens on Long Island and the skating at the open air rinks, and fiestas in the sidewalk cafes.

It is an interesting fact that New York has a number of free "colleges" of the Romance Languages . . . Spanish, French, Italian are taught without fee, and anyone may enter who has the inclination. . . . It is an intriguing spectacle to see scores of New Yorkers, strangers to one another, gathering in public halls or sitting in parks conjugating verbs and getting the pronunciation of various old world words. Who pays the instructors I do not know, but they are qualified teachers, invariably male, and carry on full summer courses.

Book of the Week

"SOUTHWAYS," by Erskine Caldwell; (Viking; $2.50).

The customer won't get much print for his money in Erskine Caldwell's "Southways;" this department read it all at one sitting in 58 minutes flat—and didn't hurry.

He won't get even quality, either, for Mr. Caldwell has snatched up whatever lay under the work table and stuffed the handful into his new book. But he will get a few really fine bits of work, and perhaps that's all one has a right to expect. The stories were written originally for periodicals as diverse as "College Humor, "The New Yorker," "The Atlantic Monthly" and "Sunday Worker," which explains their differences to some extent.

There are 16 stories in the book, all too short. Mr. Caldwell is, according to his publisher, learning the art of saying much with little; a debatable point to say the least. There are unkind people who would say that publication of such unformed and futile sketches as "The Night My Old Man Came Home" is an effort to get much for little.

And there is something disgusting about a piece such as "The Fly in the Coffin." It is the story of an old Negro who had a pet hate—flies. When they buried him he sat right up in his grave and demanded a fly-swatter. He got the swatter, and peacefully subsided.

On the other hand, some of the sketches have a horrid sort of beauty, particularly "A Knife to Cut the Corn Bread With" and "Wild Flowers." The first has a serious oversight buried in it; the second is doubtless impossbile. But the creeping horror of the situation overlays all and remains ineradicably in the reader's mind.

Caldwell is less successful with humor. The story about the "polar" bear is silly, not funny; the one about the Negro in the well is only a cracker barrel anecdote over-elaborated. But there is so much worthy work in the 16 sketches one wishes Mr. Caldwell would take the time to write a real short story—we know perfectly well that stories with beginnings, development sections and reasonable ends are frowned upon as "formula" by Brother O'Brien, magi of the short story. Just the same, Caldwell needs that sort of practice. —By J. S.

Boys like adventure stories, and for the ones who like them to be true, here are three, from which to choose:

"He Went With Vasco De Gama," by Louise Andrews Kent. Red-headed Shane O'Connor and young Joan (Portuguese for John) Coelho, sail from Portugal under Vasco da Gama's command. They had high hopes of discovering India by sailing around Africa.

"No Other White Men" by Julia Davis. This is the story of William Clark, young brother of George Rogers Clark, and his friend, Meriwether Lewis, and of their famous expedition from the Mississippi to the Pacific and back.

"When Guns Thundered at Tripoli" by Charles Finger. The Barbary States affair, just before the War of 1812, was a thrilling chapter of American history. American sailors had been captured by Mediterranean pirates and sold into slavery. Two million dollars were paid to the Barbary pirates for ransom. John Rawson and Silas Marshall, two young midshipmen, were detailed for special service on land, and thrilling were their adventures!

STUDIES BUDGET

Council Committee to Work on 1939 Figures Tonight.

Faced with a July 15 deadline for the filing of the budget with the county budget commission, city council's finance committee will meet with city officials tonight to whip into shape a 1939 budget.

A rough draft of a tentative city budget for 1939 asking for approximately $260,000 for general operating expenses—not including the item of hospitalization of direct relief—has been compiled by city department heads.

The draft, Fred Miller, chairman of the finance committee, said, probably will be subjected to extensive revisions before it goes to council for approval at the July meeting.

In addition to the general fund requests, the city draft stipulates that approximately $131,000 will be needed for retirement and interest charges on general bonds.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys—How To Get Happy Relief

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

ANTI-NEW DEAL BLOC SEEN IN CLOSER UNION

Administration Opposition to Unfriendly Dems Tends to Widen Party Breach.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Administration efforts to rid congress of unfriendly Democrats — no matter what the outcome at the polls— may unite the anti-Roosevelt forces in the 1939 session even more closely.

Many of the senate foes of the court bill and other presidential measures do not come up for re-election this year. They will serve as the nucleus of the anti-administration group in the new congress.

These men already have demonstrated on two occasions that they would aid Democratic colleagues who face administration opposition in their renomination campaigns.

Leaders of the group, such as Senators Wheeler (D., Mont.) and Burke (D., Neb.), rallied quickly to the aid of Senator Gillette (D., Iowa) when WPA Administrator Hopkins endorsed his principal opponent.

Support Van Nuys.

A few weeks earlier they had pledged campaign assistance to Senator Van Nuys (D., Ind.), another court bill foe, who will run as an independent because Indiana Democratic chieftains decided to deny him a place on their ticket.

Wheeler, Burke and others of their associates interpreted Gillette's primary victory as evidence that indirect administration opposition would not necessarily turn voters against senators who fight some White House measures.

Seven Democratic opponents of the court bill, besides Gillette, are seeking renomination to the senate this year. Members of the anti-administration bloc predicted a good chance of success for a majority of them.

Gillette is the only one of the Democratic court bill foes who has been in a primary to date. The question of Van Nuys' renomination will come up formally at the Indiana Democratic convention July 11-12. Another of the group, Senator Lonergan of Connecticut, will be up for renomination in a convention in September.

These five will run in primaries: Clark of Missouri, Aug. 2; Smith of South Carolina, Aug. 30; McCarran of Nevada, Sept. 6; Tydings of Maryland, Sept. 12; George of Georgia, Sept. 14.

Tydings, George and Smith already have opposition which appears to have administration backing.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY

Worried Farmer Kills Wife, Shoots Daughter, Self.

BROOKVILLE, Ind.—(AP)—Joe Bulach, 55, farmer, shot and killed his wife, Florence, 43, seriously wounded a daughter Dorothy, 9, then killed himself. Coroner Fred C. Swing reported today.

The tragedy occurred in the Bulach home at nearby Lawrenceville.

Coroner Swing said that a son, Joe Bulach, jr., was awakened by the shooting and fled from the house. Dorothy Bulach, shot through the head, was not expected to live.

Coroner Swing quoted neighbors as saying Bulach visited them last night and appeared worried over financial difficulties.

GIVEN BADGES

3 New Scouts Receive Tenderfoot Awards at Friendly House.

Three new Boy Scouts were presented with the Tenderfoot badges at a meeting of troop No. 10 Wednesday evening at the Friendly House.

The new members are William Wrabel, Tommy McMenamin and Edward Bush. Presentation of badges was made by C. E. Silcott, neighborhood scout commissioner.

Harvey Fleck spoke to the troop, showing pictures of his hunting trip to Mexico. Curtis Rice is scoutmaster of the troop.

TOWNSHIP PLAN PERILS CITY'S

to levy the township tax on the township property outside Mansfield was ruled illegal, on the grounds that Mansfield is a political sub-division of the township and must vote on all operating levies, Lutz said.

The property valuation of Mansfield for taxing purposes is $47,000,000, while that of Madison township outside the city is $7,000,000, the county auditor's figures showed.

Deputy County Auditor Arthur S. Beck pointed out if the township levy were collected only on township property, it would have to be at least seven mills to produce the $45,000 trustees estimate will be needed for relief in the next year.

Madison township trustees have paid their relief bills in full to June 1, but in order to do it had to use up all of a $10,000 fund transfer recently authorized by common pleas court. Should the levies be voted, neither the city nor the township would receive any benefit from them until early in 1939, and meanwhile the trustees propose to borrow against the levy, if it is voted, to pay their current bills.

City officials hope to obtain authority to transfer $50,000 from the sinking fund to pay their bills for the rest of 1938. Their application for a transfer is pending in common pleas court.

Chamber To Study Levy.

Meanwhile, the Chamber of Commerce, expressing concern over the Mansfield relief situation which appears headed for a serious crisis, today planned to study the proposed relief levy which will be submitted to the electorate at the August primaries.

Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager, announced that the chamber's committee on taxation and public finance, headed by A. E. Courtney, will meet tonight to discuss the relief situation in Mansfield.

Williams said the committee will study the relief expenditures and the fiscal situation of the municipality before concluding its investigation.

He added that the action is being taken primarily to make recommendations to the chamber board of directors.

FLEES, WOUNDED

Prison Farm Fugitive Shot By Columbus Policemen.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ernest Dennison, 32, who escaped from the London prison farm May 8, was wounded while fleeing from Patrolmen Harry Gardner and D. A. Connell early today. He evaded capture for 30 minutes until overcome by the effect of a bullet.

Dennison was serving a 10 to 25 year term for robbing a Columbus automobile agency.

DIGS UP GOLD

Gardner Spades Up $20 Coins While Planting Tomatoes.

UNIONTOWN — (AP) — Samuel Camilli planted tomatoes and reaped—gold.

He was setting out the plants yesterday when his spade turned up three $20 gold coins. Now he's digging up the tomato plants.

Old timers told him a house on the site burned 30 years ago and $3,000 in gold and paper money was lost.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

AS I CAME to the edge of town this afternoon, the car did not drive so well. It swerved. I knew the trouble was a tire, since I have had this same experience many times. Somehow it never happens under the right circumstances, or in the most convenient place along the road.

I drew up to the side, along a grassy bank, got the jack and the long handle, and applied it beneath the axle. All went well until I tried the bolts that held the wheel. I had driven too near the bank, so I dug away a portion of the dirt, and then with difficulty removed the wheel. The whole operation took a little time.

On both sides of the road, a wealthy man's estate extended for quite a distance. Evergreens and other forest trees were planted in the well-kept fields. A power lawn mower cropped the grass and made it smooth and even. The immediate landscape was a study in undulating curves, and contrasting shades of green.

As I worked, a bearded farmer past middle age, drove by with his team hitched to a wagon loaded with a plow and harrow. A young man sat on the high seat beside him. The older man waved his hard brown hand toward one side of the road, then the other, and said: "Look what good farm land goin' to waste. I'd cut them trees down and tear up the ground. It's doin' nobody no good that way."

A large new limousine passed with four men in it. I heard the words, "Roosevelt . . . T. V. A. . . ." and they were gone far down the road.

A Model T with eight live high school boys approached. They laughed and joked and shouted. One said he wished he had a pretty field like this to build a house. The others whooped. "Tom's let the love bug bite him," they declared.

Presently a lonely traveler approached on foot. He seemed old and tired and sat down on the bank. "Them are lovely fields on both sides o' this road right here," he remarked. "I was tired—but they kind o' rest a fellow."

I mused as he slowly walked away—"Who really does own the earth — the beauty of a landscape, a towering mountain, a bird's song or the music of a waterfall?"

tract now was entirely "out of my hands" and that it would be forwarded to officials in Columbus.

Tharp reiterated his statement of a month ago when he said that the settlement in Mansfield in 1935 was made on an extreme compromise basis, and had been an out of the pocket loss to the company for the past three years.

He explained that increased costs and "taxes which have increased enormously in the past three years" would cause company officials to study the renewal before taking any action.

"A one-year contract at the present rates might be different," he said. "But with the business outlook for the future very uncertain and the prospect of facing additional taxes, we cannot tell yet whether we will approve the renewal of the present rates for Mansfield."

Council by a vote of 8 to 1 passed the measure as an emergency Tuesday night after a previous ordinance had been given a first and second readings.

START DRIVE FOR $1,500 FOR JULY 4TH FIREWORKS DISPLAY

Ten two-man teams representing each of the city's four parks associations today took the field in a 10-day campaign for funds to "underwrite" their second July Fourth celebration at the fairgrounds.

A goal of $1,500 has been set by the soliciting teams under the direction of Walter Underwood. They will seek subscriptions from industry, banks, utilities and businessmen.

The first report meeting will be held June 15, at Boy Scout headquarters, according to Roy W. Vaughn, president of the Mansfield Public Parks association, sponsoring the event.

Huge fireworks displays surpassing last year's celebration have already been purchased. A continuous program from 1 p. m. to 10 p. m. will include band concerts, field events and harness racing.

The Westinghouse band under the direction of R. O. Richards and a show of talent with J. Gilbert Baird as master of ceremonies, will present a colorful pageant during the first part of the evening. The program will be climaxed with the fireworks display at 9 p. m.

"The purpose of the community celebration, is to encourage Mansfielders to remain in the city over the holiday and off the highways on a day when the nation's traffic fatalities usually reach the highest of the year," Vaughn said.

The association is composed of representatives of the city's four park associations—Prospect, Liberty, North Lake, and Johns park.

CHAPTER XXIV

"Hello . . . Is that you, Larry?"

"Yes, it's me How are you, Wilbur?"

"Wasn't sure whether it was you or Muriel," Grant replied. "The days are getting a lot shorter. But it's been warm today."

"Sit down," Larry invited from the top step of the porch. "You can get a cushion off a chair if you like."

"I don't need one." Wilbur seated himself close by and removed his stiff straw hat.

"Are they keeping you busy at the mill?" Larry asked.

"So so. I always find something to do. Did Griff land a job yet?"

"I'm afraid not. He hasn't seemed to think it worth while to look for anything here. He went up to Edgerton today . . . had a chance to ride with a friend. There's a mill there. I only hope he does find something. We're rather worried about him."

"It was a rotten deal he got!" Wilbur exclaimed. "I was going to tell you something the last time I was over, but I didn't get much of a chance to talk to you. You know, some of the fellows in the place were pretty sore about Griff's being let out. He was the only one and there didn't seem to be any complaints about his work. And he isn't a new man, either. There was talk about it being spite work . . . a few thought it was something the men should take up. There was even talk of a strike."

"Oh, I hope they wouldn't do anything like that!" Larry said breathlessly. "That would be dreadful!"

"Nothing but talk," Wilbur assured her. "The thing that worries everybody most is why Mr. Wardlaw would do a thing like that. And he was the one . . . must have been."

"Why?"

"Well, Griff's boss has admitted he never made any complaint and was as much surprised as anybody. Seems the order went direct to the time office and that could mean only one thing. The main office. One thing sure, Mr. Odell had nothing to do with it."

"How do you know he didn't?" Larry waited in tense anxiety for that answer, grateful that it was too dark for Wilbur to see her face.

"I ought to know. I was the one who told him. He hadn't even heard it, then."

"But I . . . I don't understand."

"Well, I was sort of worried the way some of the fellows were talking and I happened to meet Mr. Odell out in the mill yard. Nobody talked like they suspected him of having anything to do with it, so it struck me that maybe he could do something about it. I could tell from the way he looked that it was news to him"

"What did he say, Wilbur?"

"Why, he said that he didn't have anything to do with the production work, like running the mill; that Mr. Wardlaw had all the say there. I guess he's right about that. I was pretty sure he couldn't help Griff, but I thought he might try."

* * *

Larry made no answer. All that she could think was that Mr. Odell had told her the truth the day he stopped her on the street. It all had been Mr. Wardlaw's doing . . . angry because Muriel had stood up to him. Most likely Mr. Odell didn't know anything about his uncle's call, after all. It brought a momentary feeling of gratitude, even if it could make no difference.

"Larry . . .?"

"Yes?"

"Oh, nothing much. Only I was just thinking about . . . you remember what I told you . . . what I asked you, I mean . . . that night you had lost your job? I was wondering if what had happened . . . about Griff . . . could make any difference. If you'd thought any more about it. I've been sort of worried about you . . . all."

"I'm sorry Wilbur," she answered patiently. "But I haven't changed my mind. I don't think I could ever care enough for anybody . . . that way. Honestly, I don't."

"That seems funny. I thought all girls wanted to get married some day."

"Oh, we all think about it. But I'm beginning to believe that I'd rather be independent. Might save a lot of grief in the long run."

"Look at your sister, though."

"Yes, but she's different."

"Well, I want to get married before I get too old," Wilbur persisted stubbornly. "I want a home of my own and . . . kids. And I've always liked you better than any girl in Norwood. Since you grew up, that is."

The poor boy was very much in earnest then, in spite of his artless methods.

"Listen, Wilbur," she advised seriously. "If that's the way you feel, you mustn't waste your time thinking about me. There are ever so many nice girls here in Norwood that you could . . . and here comes one of them right now. Hello, Ollie!" she called, as she recognized her plump little friend, Olive Case. "Come on up, Wilbur, please get a cushion for Ollie."

"Hello, Larry. Hello, Wilbur. Never mind . . . . I can't stay long." Miss Case dropped down at Larry's feet. "I recognized Wilbur's car, but I thought you wouldn't mind having an old friend butt in for a minute. I simply have to rest . . . got a shoe that's killing me." She leaned down and removed the offending article. "There! That's a lot better. What do you know?"

"Nothing," Larry replied, secretly glad that Wilbur's call had been interrupted. "What's new at the office?"

"Not a thing. Same old grind," her friend sighed. "Only it's getting worse. We don't seem to have any fun now. I swear Rommy's getting more grouchy the older he grows . . . had poor Tillie in tears today. And you know how pleasant Mr. Odell used to be? Well, he's just getting to be like his uncle. Oh, I don't mean he's that nasty. He just looks glum all the time. Maybe he'll speak to you when he passes and maybe he won't. I think he's putting in some kind of new cost system. Bill Elison spends a lot of his time in Mr. Odell's office doing something and Knott is forever running in for conferences. I don't know what it's all about."

Larry gave a little sigh. Elison was doing the work she had been expected to do for Mr. Odell, the new job whose promise had proved so thrilling. That was a long time ago. She sat there thinking it over, glad that Olive had turned her bantering conversation in Wilbur's direction. To her secret amusement, half an hour later when Olive insisted she must be going, Wilbur remarked:

"If your foot hurts you, Ollie, you better let me drive you home. I was just starting to go when you came. Sure I was . . . be glad to."

Perhaps Wilbur was taking her advice seriously, Larry thought to herself when the two took their leave, Olive still protesting volubly that she hadn't intended to break up her driver's tete-a-tete.

Muriel and her mother, who had been making an evening call upon one of the neighbors came home shortly after and lingered on the porch for a time talking. Griff had not returned and Larry announced that she would wait a little longer. She was anxious to know if his trip had been successful.

* * *

It was not far from midnight when a car stopped out in front and Larry recognized her brother's voice as he stood talking for a moment to the driver. A few moments later, he came slowly up the walk. Larry's heart sank. Griff didn't look as though he were the bearer of good news.

"Hello, kid," he greeted, when he saw her form huddled on the step. "Thought you'd be in bed long ago."

"Oh, I was just getting a breath of this cool air first," she told him, trying to inject a note of cheerfulness into her voice. "You had a wonderful day for your trip, didn't you?"

'BALLAD IN G MINOR' AMONG LATEST FICTION

Author of 'Gay Family' Writes Again About Mallorys in Library Addition.

Ethel Boileau, who wrote about the Mallorys in "Gay Family," has written another novel about these people in "Ballade in G Minor," one of the new fiction volumes at the Public library this week.

The action revolves around Allison, the mother; and her children who have grown to adulthood in this new book. The setting is Mallory Court, ancestral home of the family at Deepshire, England.

Donald C. Peattie's historical novel of Illinois, "A Prairie Grove" is concerned with the evolution of the land from wilderness to homestead. For background Mr. Peattie sketches the visits of the early explorers, and presents in the story of Asa Goodner and his family and their struggles against nature, an epic in pioneering.

"Ships In The Sky" by Gunnar Gunnarson describes the author's boyhood on a farm in Iceland. This autobiography novel is a gallery of fine portraits, of which that of his mother is outstanding. It was she who told her son that clouds were "ships in the sky" and gave the book its name.

A savage dissection of contemporary industrial methods and a relentless probing of the human motives that actuate the financial lords of creation make "Sugar In The Air" by E. C. Large a fantastical and satirical piece of fiction.

Other New Fiction.

Three other volumes complete the fiction list of new books for the week: "Strange Week-End," by Mary Borden; "Fast Company," by Marco Page; and "Under Capricorn" by Helen Simpson.

Sherwood Eddy's new book, "Europe Today," contains a confidential summary of the investigations made in Europe by the American Seminar during the critical year of 1937, when war clouds were gathering.

"Soldiers of Darkness," by Thomas Russell Gowenlock, tells the story of Department G-2 of the Army during the World war. Col. Gowenlock was Military Intelligence officer of the First division and his narrative, filled with human interest, pictures vividly the horror of war.

Through many trials and tribulations Isobel Field has kept her zest for life. Her book "This Life I've Loved" discloses this fact on every page.

A companion book to Kenneth Horan's inimitable "Remember The Day" and "Oh Promise Me" continues the fortunes of the engaging Ingham family after Pappa has been elected to Congress.

The various forms of poetry and instructions for writers in poetry are given in "Workers In Fire" by Margery Mansfield. The author illustrates her definitions with her own poems. The selected poems of Jake Falstaff "The Bulls of Spring," are a representative group from the works of that jovial newspaper columnist, Herman Fetzer, who before his death in 1935 was on his way to becoming one of the greatest of contemporary poets. Fetzer is remembered for his poetry columns on Akron and Cleveland papers.

Other non-fiction this week is: "American Bison," Garretson; "Little Lion: Mieke," Whitlock; "Arizona Cowboys," Coolidge; "My Tahiti," Frisbie; "First Person Plural," Enters; "William Oxley Thompson: A Memorial;" "Growth of the American Republic," by Morison & Commager, 2 volumes and "Arizona's Dark and Bloody Ground," by Forrest.

World's Tonic Gave Me Surprise of My Life

Young Massillon Lady Delighted to Get So Much Unexpected Relief

Sleeps Better—Stomach Gas, Indigestion, Limb Pains Now Relieved

"One of the most delightful surprises of my life was finding out that many of the sufferings we humans endure, and sometimes are almost resigned to, can be halted if traced to their source in constipation. You can call things names like, gastritis, indigestion, rheumatism, neuritis but why not spell them all the same way, P-A-I-N.

"I've had my share of getting up mornings tired and achy with the taste of food still in my mouth, then snatching a make believe breakfast and rushing down town trying to hold down a job in that condition, forgetting things at work, leaving my place too often for dizzy spells to pass off; noticing the rest of the help avoiding me because of an unpleasant breath; watching others being promoted ahead of me because I couldn't keep interested in my work. I had just about made up my mind that this was to be my lot in life and was satisfied to barely get by.

"I don't remember just how I got started on WORLD'S TONIC but I did and from then on life has been opening up an entirely different point of view for me. Speedy relief from constipation was followed by relief upon relief from the pains and worries it brought about. Restful sleep furnished returning energy, now I can eat a hearty breakfast in the morning and go to work without the thought of being outdone by the other employees. No doubt there are many young ladies who are going through life with the same discomforts and miseries as were my experiences. But I'd like to tell them all not to give up hope and become resigned to their fates as I almost did. I feel so grateful that I could almost shout, 'Try WORLD'S TONIC and share with me, the most delightful surprise of my life,'" said Alice Christean, 406 Seneca, Massillon, Ohio.

"WORLD'S TONIC is not only an aid in helping free bowel action but acts as a mild diuretic to the kidneys. It is reasonably priced so that it may take a regular place in the family medicine chest.

Senate Bloc Calls Caucus on Wage-Hour Filibuster

FOES CHARGE A.F. OF L. UPSET COMPROMISE

Southern Senators Continue Fight for Elastic Clause on Minimum Wages.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Seventeen southern senators today issued a filibuster ultimatum unless a flexible 40-cent wage standard is placed in the Wage-Hour bill.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Senator Ellender (D.-La.), dissatisfied with a committee compromise on the wage-hour bill, called a caucus of southern senators today to determine whether they would filibuster against the legislation.

Ellender charged representatives of the American Federation of Labor with "interfering" with the work of the senate-house conference committee.

The AFL's influence, he said, had upset a compromise by which the southerners hoped to prevent the fixing of a definite date for reaching the minimum pay goal of 40 cents an hour.

Effective Immediately.

As agreed on by the conference committee, the bill would put a minimum wage of 25 cents an hour into effect in all interstate industry immediately. This would advance to 30 cents an hour the next year. At that point industrial boards would be organized to determine the minimum for each industry.

At the end of seven years, however, all industries would have to advance their minimum to 40 cents an hour, except in cases where the boards found that requirements would curtail opportunities for employment.

Ellender said the southerners were dissatisfied with this proposal because of the seven-year clause. His southern colleague on the conference committee, Senator Pepper (D.-Fla.), said he had voted for the compromise in the belief it was the best that could be obtained.

Pepper said he would move to reconsider adoption of the compromise in an effort to bring the industry boards into existence at once. This would enable them to raise the wage minimum to 40 cents as quickly as feasible.

The committee, discussing maximum hours, adopted as a tentative working basis the proposition that no interstate industry should work its employes more than 44 hours without paying them time and a half for overtime.

This 44-hour scale would be in effect the first year, succeeded by a 42-hour scale the second year, and the ultimate goal of 40 hours the third year and thereafter. There could be exceptions to the 42 and 40-hour regulations, but not to the 44-hour week.

Inmate Who Escaped From Farm Gives Self Up In Willard.

Free for just 12 hours, Clarence Kruse, jr., 19, was to be brought back to Mansfield reformatory from Willard today, to continue serving time for burglary and larceny, with a penalty added.

Kruse, who was sentenced from Hamilton county last October to a one to 15 year term, walked away from the reformatory farm about 3 p. m. yesterday, according to Superintendent Arthur L. Glattke. He was picked up in Willard, north of here, at 3 a. m. Glattke said Willard authorities told him Kruse had given himself up. If that is so, Glattke added, the additional time Kruse will have to serve will not be as great as if he had been captured by officers.

Dean Wolford, 11-year-old pupil in a Bloomingrove township rural school, probably will be one of the happiest boys in the county tomorrow when he receives a $3 check from the state treasurer. The lad won the prize for his farmers' institute poster entered in the state poster contest last winter. He was the only prize winner in Richland county, and ranked fourth in the state among pupils in the first six grades of school.

Mansfield's name was emblazoned today from a new point, and it was done in a rather artistic sort of way. Jacob Rahm, city park superintendent, today had completed planting of a new garden plot in Central park. The word "Mansfield" is spelled out in red begonia plants, with the letters five feet high. The red flowers are outlined with a border of yellow plants.

Sponsors of school festivals needing someone to inspire concession sales might find their man in Albert Perez, the photographer. Perez showed how it should be done at the Brinkerhoff school festival last night while serving at the hot dog stand. Whenever he'd receive an order for a "dog," he repeated it so frequently that it attracted others, creating the impression that everybody was buying. Thanks to Perez' selling tactics, the wieners were disposed of in short order.

PLANS NEW OHIO GAME DISTRICT

Woddell Sets Up Program to Conserve Wild Life in Dayton District.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Plans for a 10,000-acre game management district were announced today by Lawrence Wooddell, state conservation commissioner.

The project, Wooddell said, will embrace a large portion of the Miami Conservancy district, lying mostly to the north of Dayton.

A preliminary report, submitted by James W. Stuber, state game management agent, indicated that the Great Miami River valley could be utilized to advantage as a game refuge and propagation area, Wooddell said.

"The region is excellently suited for the breeding of waterfowl, pheasant, rabbits, prairie chicken, Hungarian partridge and grouse," Stuber's report said.

Stuber was assigned by Wooddell to establish headquarters in Vandalia and complete his survey from that point.

"The purpose of the proposed development," Wooddell said, "is to balance the state conservation program, and provide in the western section a large area in which wildlife propagation, development and control is exercised as thoroughly as in the Muskingum Conservancy district."

Wooddell said civilian conservation corps facilities were available in the district for completing a final survey.

MACKEY NAMED

Elected to Parole Association Board at Convention.

Three Ohio persons, one from Mansfield were named to the board of the Central States Probation and Parole association, at the annual election of officers in Columbus last night.

W. K. Mackey, acting chaplain of the Ohio State Reformatory and now general parole agent of Ohio, was named to the board of directors. Charles L. Haslop, Newark, state parole supervisor, was also named to the board. Mrs. Margaret Allman, Ohio Welafre director, was chosen a vice president. The organization will be headed by A. C. Lindholm, St. Paul, Minn., who was elected president. Next year's meeting will be held in St. Louis, Mo.

Governor Martin L. Davey, the speaker last night at the annual banquet, told the group he was ashamed of Ohio's overcrowded institutions."

WPA TO CONSOLIDATE PROJECTS IN COUNTY, OFFICIALS TOLD

After July 1, WPA projects in Richland county will be consolidated into not more than two programs in order to assure completion of projects and to speed up the approval of projects by the federal government, J. L. Kelly, sixth district WPA director, said last night in a talk before county and township officials at the courthouse.

Major projects are now operative in Mansfield, Bellville and Shelby, but the ones in Shelby and and Bellville are nearing completion.

Kelly said the two projects probably would be the county's $1,000,000 road and bridge program, which would include any city street projects, and the $75,000 waterworks project in Mansfield.

Praising the county's proposed road and bridge project as "one of the most desirable types of work relief programs," Kelly told county and township officials that the project stands a good chance of receiving prompt approval at Washington.

The program already has been approved by both state and national WPA offices and now awaits the action of the bureau of budgets, which must allocate funds for all federal projects, Kelly said.

Drawn up by County Engineer Howard C. Sword and his staff, the project, if approved, will give 500 men and employment for two years, and lift most of the direct relief burden from the shoulders of Mansfield and township officials.

In his talk before about 75 members of the township trustees' and clerks' association, Kelly pictured the WPA organization as a "human labor producer as local as your own backyard." He urged trustees to spend their funds to help sponsor work relief projects rather than spend the money for direct relief.

Trustees will be asked to confer with county commissioners and the county engineer within the next two weeks on the extent to which the townships wish to participate in the $1,000,000 county project.

J. R. Thomas, Hayesville, state president of township trustees and clerks, spoke briefly on proposed relief legislation and called on the trustees to oppose the use of gas tax funds for relief.

"A diversion of gas tax money just throws other men out of work, since 87 per cent of the tax goes for labor on road building and maintennace," Thomas said.

He invited trustees and clerks to attend the state convention of township officials next Wednesday and Thursday at Cedar Point.

William Harris, Plymouth township, president of the trustees-clerks organization, was in charge of the session.

4TH ATTACK ON VESSELS SPURS 'WARNING' PLAN

British Official Dies With Four of Boat's Crew in Raid at Harbor Today.

(By International News Service)

LONDON — Spurring British plans for a "final warning" to Generalissimo Francisco Franco against attacks on British shipping, a Spanish insurgent airplane today bombed and set fire to a French steamer in the harbor of Denia, killing a British non-intervention observer and four members of the crew.

At the same time, the British steamer Isadora was bombed at Castellon de la Plana and put out of commission and two other British ships set on fire at Alicante. The new outbreak of outrages against neutral shipping impelled the British cabinet to consider drastic action to prevent repetitions.

Four Others Wounded.

The steamer attacked at Denia was the 2,541-ton French cargo vessel Brisbane. An incendiary bomb dropped from a low-flying war plane not only killed the observer and four members of the crew but also seriously wounded four others aboard, including the master, Capt. Guyol. Six others were slightly hurt.

Eye-witness accounts said the marauding pilot raked the ship's deck with machine-gun fire after scoring a direct bombing hit. The Brisbane burst into flames and is expected to be a complete loss.

The French consul at Valencia motored to Denia, which lies south of Gandia, the British-owned port attacked yesterday, to investigate the attack while a French destroyer put out from Valencia under forced draught.

A British destroyer meanwhile arrived at Alicante to stand by British shipping in that harbor.

In London, it was learned that the cabinet will be asked to sanction what was termed a "final warning" to Franco to refrain from further bombing of British ships in Spanish waters.

DIES AT AGE 62

Mrs. Mueller, Galion, Taken by Death Today.

GALION — Mrs. Luella Marie Tracht Mueller, 62, wife of G. Frank Mueller of here, died this morning at Magnetic Springs following a lingering illness. Mrs. Mueller went to Magnetic Springs for treatment last Monday.

Mrs. Mueller was born in Crawford county and spent her entire life in this vicinity. She was a member of the Peace Lutheran church and was active in the Women's Missionary and Ladies' Aid societies of the church.

Surviving are three children, Rev. Don Mueller of East Palestine, Ray Mueller of Lakewood, and Mrs. Ray Early of Toledo; a half-brother, Charles Tracht of Cincinnati, and two grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at the Volk funeral home with Rev. P. E. Auer, of Peace Lutheran church, officiating.

FAIR ENOUGH!

How Does Hague Get Authority to Use Troops In His Fascism Display?

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—This is the day I eat a platter of crow.

Frank Hague, the mayor of Jersey City, is as ruthless and dangerous as Huey Long was at his worst, and the gang of hoodlum politicians who serve him in northern New Jersey are the same kind who performed for Long in Louisiana.

Knowing that many of the so-called invaders of Jersey City are New York Communists who would assert their constitutional rights only to gain the power to suppress the rights of others, I have given aid and comfort to Hague. I have known him as a political figure for years and have met him a couple of times, and always, until now, regarded him as a familiar type of "dese," "dose" and "dem" local American political boss.

The graft in Jersey City is about the same, in proportion, as that in Louisiana and in commendatore Tomaso Pendergast's Kansas City. That, however, is not a matter of national concern, nor did it seem to me unreasonable that he should officially forbid speeches and demonstrations which would block traffic and might cause riots in the principle square of the town.

Moreover, his pressure on local property owners to prevent the Communists and other reds from hiring halls in which to hold meetings seemed to be in line with the boycotts and secondary picketing by which his enemies regularly punish not only those who oppose them but innocent parties not even remotely connected with their fights.

I think this is dangerous practice, and unfair if not illegal, but it seemed inconsistent of Hague's opponents to protest when struck with their own whip.

But when Hague turns out the National Guard to march in a dictator's parade which blocks traffic in the very same public square that he was so careful to keep clear of other blockades he is a worse menace than Stalin's men. It is the custom of the Communists countries where they reach a certain point to proselyte in the army and the police force, and they doubtless intend to try that here if they have not done so already. But Hague, like Huey on many occasions in Louisana, has taken over the troops, 700 of whom marched under arms behind Brigadier General William A. Higgins, who acted as grand marshal.

Hague already had the police force, which is well equipped, well disciplined and brutal in its loyalty to the dictator, but that was another local matter.

* * *

But Hague has now assumed command of the soldiers of the National Guard, with their guns and ammunition, to serve as his personal army. Hague gives indications that he has lost his head and is thinking of using troops to support a regime which was left unanswered many charges of graft and persecution.

By what right, I wonder, were the soldiers ordered out with their equipment, which is government property, to make a demonstration of armed force for a local Hitler!

President Roosevelt has been asked whether, as commander-in-chief he agrees to Hague's misuse of the armed forces. He never gave his answer but the national administration never did anything to curb Huey beyond indicting some of his henchmen for income tax violations, and those still untried were absolved and welcomed back after his death. I don't know the law. Maybe the president can't do anything to Hague, but at least he can say something. This man has gone haywire. He is so thick and clumsy that he had to go completely over to Fascism to outscuffle a few Stalinites.

Hollywood Speaks—

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Every day or so there comes to this desk an elegantly engraved invitation: "You and your guest are invited to a Press Preview of . . . . ., at . . . . Theater," etc.

Scarcely a day passes that the same invitation for some other press preview does not come by telephone. The "press preview" is a Hollywood institution, and a strange one.

The idea behind it is this. The studio has a picture ready for the public. The studios would like the correspondents of Hollywood to see it and tell the public about it—especially if it's a good picture. If it's too bad a picture, they skip the preview. If it's fair to middling, they hope for the best. (Which goes for the previewers too.)

Different studios handle "press previews" different ways. Most of them have lights outside the theater, all of them attract hordes of autograph-hunters and sightseers. The press—and remember this is a "press preview" we're talking about—gets inside by bucking the line and battling its way through the ranks of glamour-on-the-hoof.

Now we're in the theater. We find all the choice seats (reserved by the studio for the press) roped off. But then the fun begins. Ushers, with orders from above, take us in tow. "No, you can't sit there." Well, we're peaceful folk, so these other seats will do. "No, you can't sit there—here are your seats." We are getting irritated. We have come early especially to get seats far in the rear and center for the sake of much abused eyes. We don't propose to sit off to the side, where the actors look like horses, or down front, where the actors look like giants swimming in our tears. So we go to bat, we call in the management, and we get seats from which we suffer only the pains inflicted by that particular film.

If not, then like Garbo, we tank we go home. But we haven't had to go home—yet. The secret is (I hate to admit it) not our powers of persuasion, our personal charm, or force in intimidating managers. It is CIRCULATION. The studios want us to see their picture—even if they have to give us good seats.

At some of the previews your correspondent is equally embarrassed by being treated as a Sacred Cow. A Sacred Cow is one whose appearance in the theater lobby is greeted by two upraised fingers. As Rog Wagner put it once, you are a one-finger critic or a two-finger critic. According to the number of fingers raised at your approach, in signal to the usher, you are seated. To be a Sacred Cow you must, first, have large circulation either by newspaper, magazine, or air waves. You should, preferably, appear in a Los Angeles, Chicago, or New York newspaper. The advantage in being an S. C. is simply that you get a fair impression of the picture, an advantage withheld from many shrewder, far better critics.

For whom, then, are these choicer seats reserved at our Press Previews? For such able, conscientious, widely-read reporters as—I mention only a few noted at recent previews—Constance Bennett, Marlene Dietrich, the Countess di Frasso (who isn't even in pictures except socially), Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Rouben Mamoulian Michael Curtiz and Bess Meredyth, none of them connected in any way with the picture being previewed, except by invitation of the producer who is showing his latest work to the Press.

MARTHA ALEXANDER (Scholarship)

CONSTANCE BAXTER (Scholarship)

WILLIAM HETLER (Progress Medal)

Five members of the senior class of St. Peter's high school which will be graduated tonight received recognition for scholastic achievements during their four-year high school courses at class day exercises Tuesday night in the school auditorium. Harold Reindl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reindl, 80 Greenwood avenue, won first honors with the highest scholastic average in the class of 38. Harold was the class valedictorian. Margaret Sableski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sableski, 54 Richland avenue, won second honors and was class salutatorian.

Scholarships to St. Francis college, Joilet, Ill., were presented to Martha Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Alexander, and to Constance Baxter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LeMar Baxter. The annual Progress award went to William Hetler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Hetler.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

Give Shower For Miss Betty Gustin

Last night Miss Helen Bunn, West Fourth street, and Miss Ruth Malone entertained at the Fourth street address in honor of Miss Betty Gustin, West Fourth street, who will become the bride of Ward Ingram, Lexington avenue road, June 19. The affair was a dessert bridge and linen shower for the bride-to-be.

There were three tables of bridge with prizes going to Miss Helen Anderson and Miss Elizabeth Zimmerman. These, along with the shower gifts and a bedspread from the hostesses, were presented to Miss Gustin.

The dessert course was served at a long table set with a yellow and white cloth and yellow fiesta ware. White flowers and tapers were used and yellow nut cups and place cards were the favors.

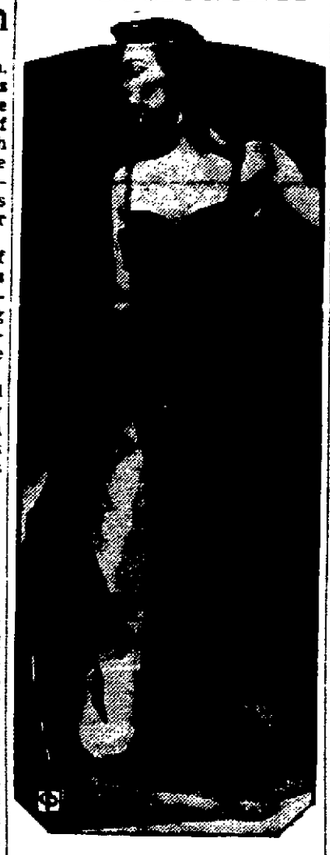
Engagement Told At Dinner Party

At a family dinner attended by 12 relatives the engagement of Miss Eileen Helen Shasky to Arthur Witzle Simpson was announced last night. The dinner was given at the home of the bride-to-be's mother, Mrs. Martha Shasky, 14 Lily street.

The couple will be married June 19 at the First Presbyterian church. Mr. Simpson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Simpson, Hedges street.

Dinner was served at a long table decorated in a pink and white color scheme and with roses. The announcement was made on small cards at each guest's place.

In Seersucker



Renee Montague designed the evening gown pictured, with its draped bodice, heart-shaped decolletage and closely fitted skirt. The material is sheer printed seersucker, the design inspired by the empire period, and there is a matching jacket.

The glowing colors of this print suggest stained glass windows.

No Wonder You Are Constipated!

What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? Bread, meat, potatoes? No wonder you're constipated; you probably don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean the amount you eat. It means the kind of food that forms a soft "bulky" mass in the bowels. It's this mass that helps a bowel movement.

The common sense thing to do about it is to eat a natural laxative food. Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast will give you just the "bulk" you need. And it gives you, in addition, Nature's great intestinal-tonic, vitamin B_1. Eat this crunchy toasted cereal every day, drink plenty of water, and life will be brighter for you! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.
